How He Got Even with Custer

Philadelphia Press

General Tom Rosser was a gallant [illegible] ate soldier I saw him in the Grand [illegible] other day Years and his work on the [illegible] Pacific railroad have told upon him [illegible] looks much older than he did when [illegible] the southern states poor to become [illegible] gineer for Jay Cooke Rosser was [illegible] picturesque character as a leader of [illegible] of rebel cavalry In a great degree [illegible] bled Custer whose classmate he was [illegible] Point Once at [illegible] mills in [illegible] he was driven out he left a message [illegible] ladies at a farm house for the gallant [illegible] who died on the Big Horn It read [illegible] You have disturbed me at my breakfast [illegible] owe you one and I'll get even with you [illegible] He was as good as his word He [illegible] Custer to cross the creek then succeeded [illegible] upon him while his command was [illegible] coffee It took Custer twelve four [illegible] gather his soldiers after this dash [illegible] made money and has a fine position.

The Last of the Stuarts

TARIFF TALK.

Hewitt Introduces His Bill which is Referred to the Ways and Means Committee

WASHINGTON May 12 —Special.—Hewitt introduced a tariff bill in the house this morning which was referred to the committee on ways and means where it seems likely to repose for the remainder of the session The gentleman from New York has never regarded the late Morrison bill with approval and he only voted for its consideration as a matter of party duty Morrison on the other hand thinks his bill was a much better one than the one now proposed by Hewitt and the chairman is therefore opposed to its consideration by the committee Blackburn is of the same opinion and Hurd does not favor the new bill though he would do so if it were practicable to pass one Hewitt Jones and Mills think that an attempt to pass the new bill should be made These gentlemen however form a minority of the committee Hewitt believes that all the democrats who voted for the Morrison bill would vote for his in a body and he thinks that several democrats from Pennsylvania who voted to strike out the enacting clause of the old bill will support the new one

HEWITT INTERVIEWED

One of the members of the committee who attended the conference at Hewitt's rooms Saturday night said to your correspondent to-day I do not say that we can pass the Hewitt bill but it is in my judgment worth the attempt I think with a few changes the bill can be made acceptable to several protectionist democrats who voted against us last week Whether the committee will take action on the bill is for future consideration There is opposition to it but I believe its friends could demonstrate their ability to pass it There would be trouble in getting a favorable report I think the protection democrats are beginning to feel that the vote on the Morrison bill placed them in an embarrassing position from which quite a number of them would gladly retreat if we give them a chance I hear that the protectionist democrats will soon issue an address to the country explaining their reasons for voting as they did on Morrison's bill

POST OF PENNSYLVANIA

Your correspondent asked Representative Post of Pennsylvania if there was any truth in the story of his issuing an address

Not a word of truth he replied I hope our opponents give us credit for a little more common sense Everybody who reads knows why we opposed the Morrison bill and there is no necessity for an explanation

Do you think the Hewitt bill would be supported by many of the democrats who voted against the Morrison bill?

I don't but something would probably depend on the shape in which the bill was reported from the committee I do not think there is the slightest reason to believe that any serious attempts will be made to agitate the subject of tariff again this session The opponents of agitation are united and they will be able to prevent it

PROVISIONS OF HEWITT'S MEASURE

WASHINGTON May 12 —Representative Hewitt's new tariff bill after making modifications to simplify the administration of the customs laws provides that after the 30th of June 1884 internal revenue tax on brandy distilled exclusively from apples peaches and grapes shall be 10 cents on each proof gallon or wine gallon when below proof After January 1 1885 no article mentioned in schedule H cotton and cotton goods shall pay a higher rate of duty than 40 per cent ad valorem in schedule J (hemp and flax), than 35 per cent in schedule K (wool and woolens) than 70 per cent and carpets and carpeting shall not pay a higher rate than 45 per cent ad valorem, and in schedules B and C (earthenware glassware and metals) not higher than 50 per cent On all articles except those specially excepted mentioned in schedules A (chemicals) D (wood) G (provisions) (books) N (sundries) other than precious stones and E (sugar) there shall be levied 90 per cent of the duties now imposed On articles in schedule F (tobacco) there shall be levied 80 per cent of the duties now imposed On still wines in casks the duty shall be forty cents per gallon It repeals that clause of the law of 1883 which imposes a tax of 6¼ cents per pound on iron or steel rivets screws nails and fence wire rods in coils and loops valued at ¼ cents or less per pound and authorizes the secretary of the treasury to refund to any manufacturer of fence wire or wire baling ties the amount of duties which may have been paid on imported iron or steel wire rods actually used in the manufacture of fence wire or baling ties

CONGRESSIONAL CHIT-CHAT

A PETITION FROM THE PACIFIC COAST

WASHINGTON May 12 —[Special.]—General Rosecrans has received a letter from A B Hotaling and several other large importing firms of the Pacific coast in which he is requested to urge the passage of the bill which allows merchants to store goods in United States bonded warehouses for any length of time, provided the tax is paid The present law requires importers to remove goods within three years or they are sold as abandoned The letter states that the present law forces unprofitable sales and is very severe on such goods as wines, brandies and spirits which while in warehouse are acknowledged to be pure but as soon as removed are open to the suspicion of adulteration and have to be disposed of at a reduced price The letter refers to a resolution of the San Francisco chamber of commerce on the same subject

CALIFORNIA MATTERS

WASHINGTON May 12 —[Special.]—Ex Senator Cole is here in the interest of California claimants to French spoliation claims money An effort will be made in the house this week to have the bill which has been reported from the committee on foreign affairs considered

It is now expected that congress will adjourn about July 1 The general disgust of the tariff democrats will prevent its sitting later than that All the California members will be candidates for re-election Sumner and Rosecrans under the new apportionment being in the same district they will naturally enter tain an opposite view of who should be returned

IN WALL STREET

A Day of Fluctuation Ends in a General Decline—Quotations.

NEW YORK May 12 —Governments lower Rail ways weaker for West Shore Stocks were lower on the announcement that the Union Pacific had cut passenger rates from Denver to Chicago It was also reported that the Standard Oil Company was in trouble but this statement was met by a prompt denial from the treasurer of the company Prices dropped ⅛ to 2 per cent the latter Central Pacific which fell off to 42⅛. Union Pacific was also weak Before the first call it was officially announced from the Union Pacific office that the rates between Chicago and Denver were being strictly maintained At this time a sharp borrowing demand for stocks set in The denial by the Union Pacific officials and the scarcity of stock for borrowing purposes led to heavy purchases to cover short contracts and prices rose ⅛ to 2 per cent Northern Pacific preferred advanced 1¾ to 53⅞ and Union Pacific 1⅜ to 52 Subsequently Northwestern broke to 103 and St Paul to 77 This unsettled speculation once more and a general decline took place Before 1 P M Northwestern rallied to 105, St Paul to 77, and Union Pacific to 51¾ Later the markets became irregular but at 2 P M Union Pacific became very weak and broke under large offerings to 49 After the delivery hour a better feeling prevailed and a number of shorts bought in under rule for non delivery There was a difference of ⅛@¾ per cent between sales regular and cash Prices rose ⅛@1 per cent but near the close a weaker feeling set in and the market left off steady Compared with Saturday closing prices are 3 per cent lower for Union Pacific, 2¾ for Central Pacific and 1 for Oregon Transcontinental

THE BEARS SAVED WALL STREET

NEW YORK May 12 —[Special]—The Sun this morning in comments on Wall street says There is no exaggeration in saying the bears saved Wall street from a panic last week Even the biggest bulls are powerless in circumstances like those prevailing now What for instance, can D O Mills do to keep up Erie securities, or prevent a short selling against outside holdings which are sure to come? The fact that Mills and party have Erie bonds and stocks locked up did not prevent either from tumbling nearly 10 per cent in a few days Both bonds and stocks are held in large blocks in Europe and it is difficult to tell what figures prices will go to, when securities sold by frightened European holders begin to pour upon the New York market

JAY GOULD'S VIEWS

NEW YORK, May 12 —[Special]—Jay Gould said to-day I consider the prospects first rate I have just received a dispatch from Toledo from the largest grain dealer in the United States who says he has just returned from a trip through Illinois Indiana, Missouri and Kansas and that he has never seen such prospects at this season of the year for large and abundant crops The corn crop in Kansas will be 35 per cent above average, and there is also a large amount of wheat yet to be moved From now on he says things will be much better I think prices for stocks are below bottom and as far below their true values as they ever were above

FROM THE POST

NEW YORK May 12 —Special —The Post's financial article says The stock market is undoubtedly very largely oversold, and the bears have put out unusually large lines of short sales as indicated by the high premiums paid for the loan of stocks this forenoon No other fact in the whole railroad situation has so clearly demonstrated to the general investing public that the expansion of the railroad system had increased competition to a point where the great bulk of American railways must for a year or two be operated at a loss to the stockholders as the collapse in the value of Union and Central Pacific stocks.

SENATOR SABIN'S FAILURE

Eastern Capitalists Large Holders of the Concern's Paper—The Receiver's Work

BOSTON May 12 Senator Sabin has been a heavy borrower for the car company from capitalists in New York and Boston and many of the smaller cities of New England He sold stock in Norwich Connecticut, Fitchburg, Lowell Manchester Bangor and other places Trust funds are said to be largely invested in it Considerable preferred stock was sold with half common stock thrown in as bonus One firm in Boston is said to hold nearly $100,000 in the stock and paper of the car company but it is not expected that the firm will be affected by the failure Sabin has been east several times lately making sales of stock and negotiating loans Not many months since a leading firm held nearly $300,000 of his stock and paper

THE RECEIVER'S WORK

ST LOUIS May 12 —Receiver Brown of the Northwestern Car Company will begin the work of obtaining an inventory of all the property of the concern without delay This property embraces small [illegible] of machinery scattered throughout the country in the hands of numerous agents as well as the former tal paper held by the company the enormous plant and large amount of material on hand at the works Mr Brown says he will pay off all the hands on Thursday the 15th of the present month The shops will then be shut down for a few days to facilitate the taking of the inventory.

[illegible] Gilfillan first vice president of the car company says the intent on is to continue operations and [illegible] the receiver for ten months after which time it is thought the company will be in a condition to continue The senator says there has been mismanagement but still believes the creditors will be paid in full

FROM THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS

PHILADELPHIA May 12 —[Special]—The Press says The failure of Senator Sabin's northwestern car company a corporation with a paid up capital of $3,500,000 is the first sign that the recent collapse in New York is likely to lead to evil results away from the east board The Erie road will not recover from the Marine bank failure for a time

The Press thinks other disasters are impending The failures of New York reflect closely the prosperous condition of trade which is best on the Pacific coast and grows steadily better The trade and manufactures of the Atlantic coasts are the real sufferers in present crisis The New England cotton mills are worse off than others Cotton planters in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia are reported in a poorer financial condition than last year The shock to confidence from the failures of the past week has dashed the hopes which were earlier excited that this spring would see a revival of business prosperity

RUN ON A BANK

OUR TAX SYSTEM.

SILVERTON May 12

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In your editorial of March 8 under the heading Our Tax System you ask What will the legislature do with the mortgage tax law? Will it attempt to amend so as to make it valid and yet no do any thing to secure or enforce just and fair valuation of other kinds of property for purposes of taxation or will it resolve to deal in a rational way with the whole problem and cure so far as it may the glaring defects of a system which has burdened the state so long ?

As I was a member of the legislature which passed the mortgage tax law I desire a few words in your columns in reply to your queries and suggestions concerning our tax system

Ours is what is called the ad valorem tax system that is of taxing every one in proportion to the value of his real and personal property Such is our constitution such also is the whole body of statutory directions to the various officers affected by them

Cash valuation has been the law for more than a score of years and in order to emphasize and particularize it the legislature of 1880 passed an act defining the term cash valuation to be not what property will bring at forced sale but what it sells for in the ordinary course of business

Under this system all kinds of property are intended to be rated at their cash value land, houses cattle, goods merchandise, money notes and accounts and if they are not so rated it is not the fault of the law the officers are to blame

Hence the question arises Is the system really wrong making proper allowances for the shortcomings of the public servants elected to execute the law or is it lacking in compulsory statutes relating to the said officers

But how can we judge a system by its practical results when it is acknowledged on all hands that the system has never been put in practice Why, it is a common expression among Marion county farmers that it is a tax on conscience so much does the result depend upon the person assessed

There is no pretense on the part of the county assessors that tangible property is assessed at its cash value The rule of the assessor of Marion in 1883 was half cash value as he told every one that desired to know What the rate will be this year I have not learned but it will be undoubtedly below what he has a care to do for he fears public opinion more than the pains and penalties of perjury which are never inflicted

If the penalty for willful neglect of duty were imprisonment ten years in the penitentiary the case would in no wise be altered so long as the officer felt safe in his work of disobedience Can the legislature do more than to define the duties of officers and fix the penalty, for the non fulfillment of duty Certainly not The rest must be left with the officers and the people

Mr William Reid in seeming ignorance of our statutes, says that he does not ask for the repeal of the mortgage tax law but he does want the legislature to pass an act providing that mortgages shall be assessed at the same rate as other property

The law says just that now, for it provides, as plainly as words can make it for cash valuation of land and other property and mortgage at their face Would it not be eminently silly for the legislature to enact that the misjudgments and mistakes of assessors should become the law of the land

If the assessors willfully refuse or neglect to perform their duty there is a way to compel them and Mr Reid or any other person could accomplish it with very trifling cost Suppose Mr Reid should send a circular to the county assessors informing them of his intention to take legal proceedings immediately against every one who failed to do his duty evidently the little bit of information would prove to be more potent than public opinion for the assessors would then have a pressing reason for disobeying public opinion

Whenever the county assessors perform their duties to the best of their ability the objection of Mr Reid and others would be removed for taxation would be equal and uniform as the constitution requires

THE OREGONIAN however is opposed to taxing credits which is as much as to say that money notes and accounts shall be exempt from taxation This would be a new departure in Oregon and one which would encounter a great and probably overwhelming opposition throughout the state In principle it would be repugnant to our system of ad valorem taxation as applied to persons whatever it might accomplish in practice Could it be said that taxation is equal and uniform when horses are exempt or when cattle or sheep are exempt or indeed when any form of property is exempt

Mr Reid says truly that taxation is not uniform when land is assessed at one fourth or one half its value and mortgages at their face which is the same as saying that taxation is not equal and uniform when there is a partial exemption of land He could have gone further and said with as much truth that the infraction of the constitution is still greater when land or any other property is wholly exempt from taxation The constitution expressly says that the legislative assembly shall provide by law for uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation and shall prescribe such regulations as shall secure a just valuation for taxation of all property both real and personal excepting such only for municipal educational literary scientific, religious or charitable purposes as may be especially exempted by law

Hence the only way to exempt credits notes is to prove that they are not property, which would be rather an uphill business according to the present understanding of the word property by the supreme court

But THE OREGONIAN says 'you haven't taxed credits you can not tax credits credit evades taxation you merely double tax the borrower'—an argumentative assertion which has great strength because it has so much truth

Notwithstanding this, would it not be well to examine the relations a little further to see if there may be conditions in which the effects are not so pointed?

We can premise with perfect safety that when any species of property is exempt from taxation other kinds bear an increased amount of tax That when one man escapes or partly escapes then other men bear a heavier burden It is this fact which causes so much dissatisfaction with the work of the county assessors

Now when credits are taxed the borrowers pay the tax let us assume and when they are not taxed the amount which they would otherwise pay is divided among all the taxpayers of the state That is as much as to say when credits are exempt from taxation the commonwealth is taxed for the benefit of the borrowers and when they are not exempt the borrowers pay it themselves But this rule of the user of an article being obliged to pay all the costs involved in the production of the article, including taxation though subject to many modifications and occasional exceptions is by no means unnatural or rare

Whether the Northern Pacific railroad charges high or low freights the Portland merchants who are the paymasters to the railroad, do not ultimately pay the freight tax—that is passed over to the consumer So also the internal revenue tax upon whisky and tobacco is passed over to the consumers of those articles for payment

Taking off the tax upon these articles would relieve the consumers by the amount of the tax and other things being equal we should have cheaper whisky and tobacco Wherefore as removal of tax at [illegible] from merchandise would cheapen merchandise as removal of taxation from houses would diminish rents so likewise the exemption of credits from taxation would lessen interest charges but in all these cases the amounts of tax lost by reason of the exemption must be made up by increased rates upon other species of property The remaining commonwealth must bear the whole burden of government But some would say, "there is a compensation." Very true there is nothing lost to the government, for what is lost in one place is gained in another As between the state and the people as a unit the argument is conclusive.

On the other hand the whole scheme of state taxation is an endeavor to apportion the burden of government among the people according to their individual property and there can be no compensation reckoned which leaves out the person paying an increased tax on account of the exemption of some other man's property.

You will recollect that where credits are exempt from taxation the commonwealth is taxed for the benefit of the borrowers and I would ask what compensation the non borrowers have in this case for the increased tax? If the answer be, 'Lower rates of interest' I answer that non borrowers can receive no direct benefit and there can be no compensation to them except it be indirectly through the increased business activity which is claimed will follow the complete exemption from taxation of all forms of credit

But this kind of indirect compensation unknown in kind or quantity, and as a present fact unknown but, as an offset to a known deficiency or wrong to particular individuals, must it not be somewhere within the domain of foggy experimentalism as respects a satisfactory solution of the question? Still I do not declare it impossible that individual or class compensation, to some extent, might not come through general or undefined compensation what I do say is that the amount is wholly indeterminate

And if exemption of credits should be legalized in order to promote the general welfare, why would it not be proper for the same reason, to pass an act giving to the money lenders 2 per cent on all the money loaned within the state at a rate not exceeding 8 per cent There is no doubt of its advantage to the lending and borrowing interests and as the state would get it back in increased taxation, there is only one class to consider, viz the non borrowers who we can assume will be recompensed by their share of the increase in productive industry arising from cheap money.

If capital could not be induced to engage in manufacturing enterprises at 8 percent interest but the state pay 1 per cent on all sums loaned at 8 per cent , when it would seem as though if ever, all sorts of enterprises would at once spring up agriculture would awaken commerce would keep pace with the supporting industries and the general welfare so augmented that there would be sufficient compensation for all of the overtaxed brethren

It is stimulated industry resulting from and is merely cheap money that can be relied upon for compensation to [illegible] non borrowing and [illegible] taxed whether it be capitalist or wage men [illegible] the point of stimulation [illegible] reached compensation will not be [illegible] therefore the question arises

What amount of protection or advantage [illegible] necessary in order to stimulate industry [illegible] to the compensatory point? [illegible] which [illegible] capital from taxation [illegible] called on an average [illegible] per cent [illegible] [illegible] would [illegible] per cent is not sufficient to stimulate [illegible] any appreciable extent [illegible] [illegible] of agricultural machinery and implements from [illegible] states east to the Pacific coast would have been sufficient long ago for the [illegible] and a protective or stimulating duty of fully 100 per cent

Experience teaches that manufacturing enterprises are not based upon borrowed capital as a rule and consequently do not pay interest to the money lenders except where the manufactured products are held for better prices. Manufactures, to be profitable and abiding must come as a consequence of growth of development, and any temporary stimulus like exemption from taxation or any of the burdens naturally borne by other forms of industry, must in the end prove to be pernicious if not disastrous The $10,000 given by the state of California could not save the cotton factory to Mr Rector the business there twenty years ago would not pay expenses by ten times $10,000 and the state of California had no power to enact a tariff for its protection. There is no call for capital to be used here in manufacturing which will be refused unless credits are untaxed the great part of the money loaned within the state, whether by native or foreign capitalists has been used to pay debts contracted as a consequence of the desultory habits of the flush and golden times and sided along with a terrible increase of 12 to 25 per cent. per annum Within the last few years the booming towns of the state and especially Portland have used considerable borrowed money in building dwellings and stores and for speculative purposes but booms cannot always last, and there is a day of realization even among speculators as the present decline to sober every day life sufficiently attests So if Portland real estate men can no longer build tenement houses stores or palaces with borrowed money at ten per cent and clear from the rentals a large profit as formerly they need not attribute the change to the mortgage tax law but to the natural and inevitable result of a forced and stimulated growth during an unprecedented excitement And if houses cannot be built there except they be exempt from taxation, evidently the wiser plan is not to build them for they are not wanted

I say houses exempt from taxation for that is the necessary consequence so long as indebtedness is deducted It is a little queer but absolutely true that when credits are exempt and indebtedness deducted everything bought or built with borrowed money is likewise exempt from taxation so long as the debt remains

If Mr T— builds a $6000 house with borrowed money when credits are exempt the whole indebtedness is deducted from the assessment which generally is considerably below the actual cost and thus Mr T— escapes all taxation upon the house and also secures a reduction of tax upon property which he fully owns When credits are taxed Mr T— pays the tax in increased interest charges and deducts his indebtedness as before

But the idea that taxation of credits doubles taxes [illegible] the borrower is incorrect as long as indebtedness is deducted Now in view of all this you will see that the legislature is compelled either to tax mortgages or repeal the law deducting indebtedness The former was practicable the latter impracticable Probably not more than half a dozen members of the last legislature were in favor of abandoning the old practice of deducting indebtedness from property valuation which has been practiced ever since the organization of civil government in Oregon when a territory Like the taxation of mortgages there seems to be no injustice in it, when faithfully carried out, and to the average legislator what is just is feasible Probably the next legislative assembly will not differ in this respect from the last And inasmuch as both political parties have resolved in favor of the mortgage tax law it will stand with the addition of an amendment conforming it to the recent judicial decision and if so the legislature will be obliged to consider the question of repealing the usury law and allowing the lender and borrower to make such terms as they choose in relation to the rate of interest

It is useless to deny that money evades taxation as a general rule and that it will go where it can obtain the largest interest where risk is eliminated and consequently if moneyed capital, and especially foreign capital is desirable here either the legal rate of interest must be considerably raised or tax rates must be considerably reduced the latter being highly improbable In fact there is nothing more uncertain than the rate of taxation especially in the newer states and territories and as a consequence the money lender, although carrying over the rate to the borrower does not know what to charge to meet the unknown demands of taxation. Evidently he will charge up to the highest known rate of taxation unless he is prevented by the too close proximity of two laws the mortgage tax law and the usury law which may be likened to the upper and nether mill stones grinding out of the country

But if the legal rate of interest is to be raised to accommodate the fluctuations of taxation better repeal the usury law altogether I W D

Gladstone makes an Earnest Speech, Explaining the Government's Action

LONDON May 12 —In the commons to-day George Anderson advanced liberal gave notice that he should shortly make a motion to condemn the existence of the house of lords The announcement was received with great hilarity

Sir Michael Hicks Beach conservative moved again his motion of May 2 that the house regrets that the course of the government has not tended to promote the success of General Gordon's mission and that steps to secure his personal safety have been delayed This action was received with prolonged cheers

Gladstone rising to speak in defense of the government's course was greeted with hearty and long continued applause He congratulated Sir Michael Hicks Beach on his forcible speech but strenuously denied that the government had deserted General Gordon The demand of the honorable gentleman he insisted amounted to a war of conquest against people struggling to be free [Cheers from the liberals] The war which Mahdi is waging is a war of freedom It is that which the honorable gentleman wishes England to put down (Renewed cheers) Continuing the prime minister denied that the government had failed in one single act that was not for the safety and success of General Gordon The charges which the honorable gentleman has just preferred against the government are absurd. They can only be accounted for by his lack of knowledge of the true facts The real object of the nation, whatever may be its ostensible aim is to displace the government. [Loud cheers from the liberals] Gladstone thereupon referred to official dispatches to prove General Gordon's security, and justify the action the government had taken He contended that the charges failed to note the fact that General Gordon had orders to resort to military force, if peaceful means should not prove successful. 'I have a duty to General Gordon and a duty to the country Both will be performed Despite the scoff of the honorable gentleman, the climatic danger and the difficulty it may be the duty of the government to plant a British force in that terrible country but the government declines to be coerced without considering the blood, honor and treasure of England and the government also declines to enter upon a vast scheme of conquest to please a captious opposition [Cheers]

Arrival at Quebec of the Remainder of the Survivors—The Disaster Still a Mystery

QUEBEC May 12 —The bark Theresa, with the remainder of the survivors of the State of Florida, arrived to-day and was taken in charge The agent of the steamer refuses to talk of the accident Officer Thompson is much depressed.

The seamen are less reticent than the officers, but are unable to throw any light upon the cause of the disaster, having been abed when the vessels collided They say they had small accommodations and spare rations. Those saved from the Ponema are Captain Heyburn Angela Rosa and Thomas Nicholson The names of the lost of the Ponema are not known

The Ponema was in ballast, from Liverpool for Miramichi The sailors of the State of Florida are secured by the agent and kept away from newspaper men One sailor of the bark perished from exposure in a boat. Captain Heyburn lost everything. Much blame on the lookout at the time of the collision ascribes the fault of the disaster to the steamer

All speak favorably of Officer Allen and agree that the City of Rome refused assistance. She was so near that it was impossible not to have seen or understood the signals All corroborate the bravery of engineers Bain and Anderson, and testify to the activity of the second officer of the State of Florida, who was lost

A STATEMENT.

NEW YORK May 12 —Captain Monroe, of the steamer City of Rome stated that April 28 while passing six sailing vessels almost becalmed, within two or three miles of each other, a full rigged ship was observed two or three miles distant, displaying signals interpreted by me 'ship-wrecked crew of state, but no urgency signal was displayed, or if displayed was not seen, nor was the name or nationality of the ship given Had a signal of distress or urgency been seen it would have had immediate attention As the day was calm the signal dropping, it was difficult to make out, but it would have been easy for the vessel to have put out a boat, which could have intercepted the City of Rome. Not until after arriving at Liverpool and hearing that a State line steamer was overdue, did the incident become connected in my mind with the indistinct signal. When I at once reported my conjecture. I certainly would be the last man to neglect the duty of every seaman to render assistance to anyone in distress at sea, having on more than one occasion been indebted to others for the preservation of my own life "

The second and fourth officers on watch duty at the time of the signaling certify their adherence to Monroe's statement.

Blaine's Friends Confident of Success—Aspirants for the Democratic Nomination

WASHINGTON May 12.—[Special.]—The president has been taking a rest for several days and except for the sporadic activity among politicians in New York, the sounds of which are heard occasionally in Washington there has been nothing done here It is now generally accepted that if Blaine's friends do not succeed in nominating him at Chicago they will select the republican nominee, This will place the Maine statesman at the head of the state department There is little doubt, however among republican leaders that Blaine will be chosen on the fourth or fifth ballot No republican congressman from New York has yet said Blaine could not carry that state and all the politicians agree that his popularity in Ohio would be found equal to Garfield's

This is to certify that I am well acquainted with a man fifty years of age, for many years a resident of this city, who has been at times extremely ill, but could not tell from what cause, unless it was worms. He told his attending physician his suspicions, but the physician at once ridiculed the idea, and refused to attend him any longer. His son then mentioned Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and asked him if he would take it his reply was—I must take something to get relief, or die

They at once procured a bottle of Dr C McLane's Vermifuge, and he took one dose The result was he passed upwards of three quarts of worms, cut up in every form. He got well immediately and is now enjoying excellent health , and like the good Samaritan of old, is endeavoring to relieve his unfortunate neighbors. He makes this his business to hunt up and select all cases similar to his own that may be given over by regular physicians, and induces them to try Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge So far he has induced more than twenty persons to take the Vermifuge, and in every case with the most happy results. He is well satisfied that Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, is far superior to any other known remedy, and that if more generally known would not fail to save many valuable lives. For further particulars inquire of Mrs. Hardie, 114½ Cannon Street, New York City.

VARIOUS ESTIMATES

Many newspapers have published by name the entire list of delegates to the national republican convention and upon these lists the organs of various candidates have based extravagant claims for their favorites. Careful inquiry however forces the conclusion that these estimates are founded largely on conjecture. As a matter of fact few of the delegates are instructed. The great majority are left free to act on the changing situations which they find after the convention begins its work. This plainly indicates that there is no good ground for the claim that either one of the candidates is sure of the support of a single delegate who is not positively instructed for him or has not resolved to support him in all circumstances. The New York Sun, a democratic paper is probably as good an independent authority as any on this particular subject. It gives a survey of the whole field setting Blaine down for 311 votes, Arthur for 323, Edmunds for 63, Logan for 65, Sherman for 28, and gives 33 to the several other actual or possible candidates. The New York Times says that Blaine has 340, Arthur 287 and Edmunds 63. The Tribune puts down Mr Blaine's vote at 397 to start with or only 14 short of a nominating majority. The Albany Evening Journal has 361 for Blaine 265 for Arthur and 87 for Edmunds. The Philadelphia Press ciphers out 337 for Blaine, 262 for Arthur and 70 for Edmunds. The Sun makes these comments on the estimates:

> These discrepancies are curious. To some extent they are probably due to the predilections of the various journals though as for the opinion of the Sun it is not a matter of predilection at all, since we regard the question very much as the woman regarded the controversy between her husband and the bear when she did not care which whipped. But contradictions of arithmetic upon a subject which ought to be so plain and simple, are not all due to preferences for this or for that candidate so much as to the duplicity of the delegates who have been chosen. There are plenty of honest men among them, of course but there is also an immense lot of liars—and when these gentlemen say they are for Blaine, or Arthur or Edmunds they say in many cases what is not true. The real strength of the different candidates will not be clearly ascertained until after a few ballots in the convention. Then the liars will vanish and the truth will shine out in full splendor.

This is impartial, as it appears to be sensible, comment. One thing only appears to be more probable than all others, namely that the nomination will not fall to either of those for whom the highest vote is now claimed. It is not unlikely that there will be many ballots before the contest is decided. In this particular the later conventions are departing from the usage of the earlier ones. Thus in 1856 the first republican national convention took an informal ballot, and it appearing that General Fremont had a large majority he was declared the unanimous nominee. There were three ballots in 1860 when Lincoln received his first nomination. One ballot sufficed in 1864, and one in 1868. General Grant was renominated by acclamation in 18[illegible]. There were seven ballots in 1876 and thirty six in 1880.

A PREDICTION

The following which appeared in our special dispatches of yesterday is worth republication. We insert it again in order to call special attention to its significance:

> A prominent democratic senator speaking of the programme here outlined some days since said: Let me give you a few thoughts and predictions. The tariff reformers will greatly outnumber the so called Randall men at Chicago and if they choose they can adopt a platform indorsing Morrison's bill and Speaker Carlisle's course. They will probably do so. That will read Tilden Randall and Eaton out of the party. Now, mark the result. All the independent democratic voters of the north on whom we rely to carry the doubtful states will go over to the republicans and we shall lose New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Ohio and Indiana in the presidential contest. This conservative element will not only elect a republican president but they will elect a republican house. The representatives of that house will in the first session of the 49th congress abolish internal revenue taxes and smooth out some of the iniquities of the present tariff which will bring the receipts of the government down to the required basis. Then away goes our great issue; the treasury surplus question is settled for ten years, and Mr Morrison will have the proud satisfaction of knowing that his conduct in this congress has resulted once more in wiping out the democratic party.

That this with some little modification is just what will take place is more than probable. It is quite certain. The republican party will be compelled to make this advance movement on fiscal questions because it cannot very much longer uphold the existing policy and it will make the endeavor as soon as it sees a clear opportunity to do so. It will not wholly abolish the internal revenue laws because that would make liquors free but it will smooth out the iniquities of the present tariff. It did something in that direction last session but would not join democrats this session in making capital for the democratic party. It has not acted in this matter during the present session upon purely disinterested motives looking solely to the public good, for parties are selfish and do not act that way. But just as soon as it sees its opportunity it will go in for tariff reform and will take the credit of it leaving the democratic party as usual to its feast of husks and disappointment.

If the states vote at the presidential election as they did in 1880 the republicans would have 2[illegible]8 votes, a majority of fifty five over the democrats who by carrying the same states as they did in 1880 would have only 1[illegible]3 votes. But to do this the republicans would have to carry Indiana, Connecticut and New York aggregating fifty-seven votes. It is admitted on all sides that these states are doubtful, and none more so than New York. The loss of all three would give the election to the democrats, but with New York in their favor the republicans could spare the other two. New York is likely to be the deciding state for whichever way its thirty six votes are cast the victory will be likely to turn. After the demonstration of last year nobody will question the assertion that New York is the stronghold of the independent vote. A state which has 75 000 or 100 000 voters who care little or nothing for party dictums and who are bound to vote for the best men and the best principles without regard to party names can be put down as doubtful in the largest sense of the term. The leading republican newspapers realize this fact, and are saying frankly that no republican or democratic ticket can hope to win next year which does not command the support of the independent voters.

If there was to be an independent movement why was it not kept out of the hands of chronic office seekers and politicians? The combination managers on both sides are men of this description, and to two of their number the nominations for the lucrative offices were given. It is apparent that if there were not big pay in these two offices there would be at this time no independent movement. That Jeffery and Marshall were nominated instead of men who have not been persistent office seekers, gives away the whole thing. Once more THE OREGONIAN wishes to say that it requires a broader basis of independent action than that.

The late Timothy O'Rene according to the Chicago Journal was ahead of everybody in prophesying about Robert Lincoln. He said that Lincoln possessed excellent abilities, clear judgment and firmness united with a strong manly upright character. In executive capacity he considered him more than the equal of his father and he predicted that these qualities would be recognized by the people and that he would be the next president of the United States. There would be a grain of poetic justice in allowing him to serve out the unexpired term of his lamented father.

Minneapolis has established a $500 license fee and fixed a "saloon limit" outside of which no beer can be sold, and it is thought that the two provisions will kill off 200 rum shops. The increased revenue will help pay the damage done to the city by those which are not killed.

SOME CURIOUS PHENOMENA OF HEARING

Sounds as everybody knows are produced by vibrations in the air. When for instance a bell is struck, the vibration of the bell beneath the blow of the hammer causes the air to vibrate. These vibrations or waves of air extend outward from the bell in all directions, just as little waves extend outward in all directions from that point on the surface of water which has been struck by a falling stone. The greater the rapidity with which the air vibrates the higher will be the sound. If for example 440 vibrations per second strike upon our ear we shall hear the note a of the treble clef. Double this number and we shall hear a note an octave higher while the intermediate notes increase in the number of vibrations with the height of the pitch. The lowest note of a seven octave piano is made by thirty two vibrations per second and the highest by 7680. To the average human ear only eleven octaves are audible. There are vibrations too slow and vibrations too rapid to give rise to the sensation of sound so that there is scientific truth in George Eliot's poetic speculation that, could we hear all the sounds produced we should die of that roar which lies on the other side of silence.

In the fact that the pitch of sounds depends on the rapidity with which the air vibrates we have an explanation of some curious phenomena of hearing. It is a familiar fact that the partially deaf can hear some voices better than others and this is sometimes due not merely to the difference in the distinctness and volume of the voices but to the difference in their pitch. Many deaf persons hear sounds on one pitch better than another. There is for instance in Chicago an eminent physician who is quite deaf to the ordinary human voice but who hears the deep sound made by the air in the lungs better than most people—so well in fact that he is much sought for as an examiner with the stethoscope of consumptive patients. A difference between people in the range of their hearing is sometimes noticed when neither of them is considered at all deaf because they can both hear the human voice without difficulty. The experience of Professor Tyndall while crossing the Alps with a friend affords an illustration of this fact. The grass at each side says Tyndall swarmed with insects which to me rent the air with their shrill chirruping. My friend heard nothing of this: the insect music lying quite beyond his range of audition. These singular facts are explained on the hypothesis that the auditory nerve consists of numerous filaments each one of which responds to a particular note and that sometimes the filaments which respond to certain notes are dull or dead while those which respond to other notes continue active. Most men and many kinds of animals are fond of music but occasionally there is found a man to whom the concord of sweet sounds is hateful discord and sometimes animals of music loving species will seem distressed by musical harmonies. In these cases it is presumable that the music sounds disagreeable instead of harmonious because the nerve filaments which respond to certain notes are dull or dead just as the finest musical composition would sound disagreeable if played upon a piano with a good many silent keys. This deafness to particular notes is like the blindness to particular colors, which is now known to be a far more common defect than was once supposed. An examination of the public school children of Boston revealed the fact that between four and five per cent of the boys were color blind and about one half of one per cent of the girls. From the rarity and in many instances the entire absence of reference to blue in ancient literature Mr Gladstone and others have maintained that our ancestors even as recently as Homer were blue blind. Of this opinion Sir John Lubbock says: "Though for my part I am unable to adopt this view it is certainly very remarkable that neither the Rig veda which consists almost entirely of hymns to heaven nor the Zenda vesta the bible of the Parsees or fire worshipers nor the old testament nor the Homeric poems ever allude to the sky as blue." On the other hand from the dawn of poetry the splendors of the morning and evening skies have excited the admiration of mankind. Blindness to particular colors as we have said is like deafness to particular notes: the explanation which has been given of the one phenomenon applying with slight modification to the other as well, for colors like sounds are produced by vibration only these vibrations instead of being in air, are in an exceedingly rare and elastic medium called ether which is believed to pervade all space. And just as a special number of vibrations in air produce a special note so a special number of vibrations in ether produces a special color. We can thus explain color blindness by supposing, that the optic like the auditory nerve is composed of numerous filaments and that each of these filaments responds to a given number of etherial vibrations. If then the filament which responds to that particular number of vibrations which produces the sensation of a blue, color be dull or dead the individual will be blue blind.

The difference in the observing powers of individuals is usually ascribed to a difference of mental constitution. But it probably arises quite as much if not more from the different degrees in which their senses respond to external stimuli. A powerful sense impression attracts our notice when a feeble one does not but to the man with keen eye sight or hearing all visual or auditory impressions are powerful. His observation is superior because his senses are superior and not necessarily because his mental constitution impels him to close observation. In his curious book on "The Music of Nature" Gardner advances the bold idea that birds sing on higher notes than men speak not merely or originally because their organs of vocalization are adapted to it but because they hear higher notes than men hear and seek to imitate them, just as a child whatever the natural pitch of its voice imitates the vocal pitch of those around it—speaking high if they always speak high and low if they speak low. However this may be it is certain that the peculiarities of the senses themselves afford a more or less complete explanation of many phenomena which have been hitherto accounted for without reference to them, or which have been left unexplained.

The Springfield Republican recalls the order of the Union Pacific railroad managers to reduce wages throughout the whole road at once an act of bouffe not very diplomatic or judicious. It was quite likely issued it says from the parlor of the company's office without much consultation with the superintendents on the ground and perhaps without warning. Pacific railroad directors sometimes do that. When the Villard excursion was planned the whole arrangement of it was put in the hands of a dapper little tenant of the Mills building named Sims. Sims mapped it out beautifully without consulting the division superintendents. He allowed just two hours for ferrying four trains of eleven Pullmans each across the Snake river at Ainsworth in Washington territory. When the trains got there they were five in number the river was low only one boat was manageable—and the operation consumed about twenty four hours instead of two. The division superintendent's opinion on that occasion of the management of Pacific railroads from New York brokers offices should be emboss[ed], framed and presented to every board of directors.

HARD UP FOR DELEGATES

MOUNT TABOR May

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In the list of delegates to the kickers convention the name of J M Sliker appears. Mr Sliker is a democrat of East Portland and does not belong to this precinct. The man, G Peterson, who was the other delegate thought, as the republicans had two delegates from this precinct, it would not look well for one to appear to represent the large number of voters and as he was the only kicker he goes to East Portland and gets a democrat to represent this straight republican precinct. John Robinson while crossing the Malheur river lately met with almost a fatal accident. The horse which he was riding refused to swim, and Mr Robinson in attempting to get off the saddle had one of his spurs entangled in the cinch and was dragged under the water a considerable distance before he succeeded in extricating himself from his perilous position.

Southern Oregon

There is now just 156 miles of staging from Ashland to Redding.

Quite a thunder shower prevailed last Thursday at Jacksonville.

The body of Mrs Joseph Campagna who was drowned a few days ago in the Umpqua river has been recovered.

The slide which occurred about ten days ago in tunnel No 6 has been cleared and trains arrive at Medford on time.

James Cunningham railroad agent at Medford furnishes the Sentinel the following figures of exports and imports at that station for the month of April: Imports 1[illegible],184 pounds; exports [illegible] pounds.

Newt Yocum who was arrested at Myrtle creek on complicity in the stage robbery at Grant's Pass last winter was on examination released the evidence against him being insufficient to warrant his being bound over.

Deputy Sheriff Briscoe of Grant's Pass who was arrested as an accomplice in the stage robbery last January was arraigned before Justice Huffer and waiving examination he was held in the sum of $1500 to appear before the next grand jury. He failed to secure the bonds and is now in jail.

While riding on a hand car near Medford Thursday afternoon James Wilson the section foreman at that place was thrown off and run over receiving serious if not fatal, injuries. The accident was caused by some one having placed rocks on the track which Wilson tried to remove with a crow bar while the car was in motion and losing his balance he fell under the wheels.

The Coast Mail of May 8 in speaking of the late John H Howlett who was drowned at Astoria some days ago says: The remains of the late John H Howlett reached Marshfield by steamer last Monday. They came in an elegant casket in an excellent state of preservation and looked very natural. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. Through respect for the deceased work was suspended at North Bend and at the mill and ship yard in this place that the employes might participate in the obsequies.

A few days ago Herbert Rogers narrowly escaped losing his life on South Coos river while engaged in a road survey with Johnny Hall, Liggett, Landrith and Frank Bridges. By some mishap or miscalculation Rogers fell fifteen or twenty feet over an almost perpendicular precipice and only escaped going into deep water by grabbing and holding to a bush when within a few feet of the water. Had he gone into the river at that time and place his escape from death by drowning would have been miraculous. It took the other members of the party fully an hour and a half to rescue Rogers from his perilous position by which time he was thoroughly exhausted and a great deal more scared than hurt.

THE REPUBLICAN NOMINEE FOR SUPREME JUDGE.

PORTLAND May 1 1884

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The republican state convention having met nominated the ticket and adjourned while I was absent from the state is my apology for addressing you so late in the day on your criticism of Lawrence Flinn nominee of the convention for supreme judge. Such criticism, it is true, while it concedes to Mr Flinn integrity etc rather disparages his standing as a jurist to compete with Governor Thayer for the position sought. It is to this I demur.

Mr Flinn is a graduate of Middlebury college Vermont from whence he emerged in 1863 and soon after entered the law office of Robert S Hale of Elizabethtown New York. He engaged in law practice in Albany Linn county in 1868 and stands at the head of the bar there if the docket of cases in which he is engaged from term to term is any criterion. Even this test is not fair for him as he has been debarred from numerous administrators and county court cases by reason of having been county judge in that county for the past four years. His position attained in a county overwhelmingly democratic bespeaks a measure of popularity where he is known that overleaps party bounds and is as good an endorsement as any one might reasonably ask for.

Assuming the office of county judge four years ago he found Linn county to be fifteen thousand dollars in debt and his term of office closed leaving over ten thousand dollars of available assets on hand besides a delinquent list which will more probably swell its assets.

If this does not commend him favorably to the people of Oregon as a prudent business man which is one of the best qualifications for a judgeship I fail to see why.

That he is the equal of Governor Thayer in any view of qualification necessary to fill the high office to which he is nominated no one who knows both men will deny. And I therefore think it is but a matter of simple justice to Mr Flinn by this means to make him better acquainted with the readers of THE OREGONIAN.

Mr Flinn is not a politician and therefore has not that prominence before the people that a hunter for all offices attains to but it is no the fact that a man is reeking with partisanship and filled with slums from the puddles of politics that specially fits him for a non partisan office as the supreme judgeship and I believe this redounds to the favor of Judge Flinn. Yours truly, OANTUS

SETTLEMENT OF AN OLD CLAIM

Indians Giving Testimony after Twenty nine Years

Pendleton East Oregonian

In 1855 the Yakima Indian war took place in which all the Indian tribes east of the Cascades were engaged. It was a sort of general uprising on account of forcing the Indians upon the several reservations allotted to them by the treaty negotiated by Governor Stevens and General Palmer. At that time Dr William McKay now a resident of Pendleton was a trader on McKay creek where he had considerable property and Mr Green Arnold now a resident of LaGrande Union county had a trading post on the south side of the Umatilla opposite the present site of Echo where Fort Henrietta stood on the land now owned by W W Brassfield. Dr McKay though very intimate all his life with the Indians and very much in their confidence was warned by his friends some of the older members of the tribe that trouble was impending, and that he was liable to be a victim as some of the younger and more impetuous bucks could not be restrained from committing crimes and depredations against the whites and all who were friendly to them. In September of that year both Dr McKay and Mr Arnold had all their property destroyed by the hostile Indians and were obliged to fly in haste barely escaping with their lives. They went to The Dalles whence the Doctor soon returned and took an active part in the war rendering the whites very valuable services and Mr Arnold we believe remained in the neighborhood of The Dalles for awhile and engaged in farming. For many years these gentlemen have been making some efforts through applications to our delegation in congress for recompense for the losses sustained in this war but so far without success. It was finally resolved to present testimony of eye-witnesses, and for that purpose Win ap at nut [illegible] Howlitz and several others of the tyees of the Indians now upon the reservation who were engaged in the war came into town on Tuesday and made affidavits before the county clerk in regard to the nature and amount of the losses sustained. Mr Arnold who has been spending several days in Pendleton as an evidence of his appreciation of their willingness to tell what they knew of the affair tendered them a dinner at the old seem restaurant at which twelve bucks six squaws and several papooses were present and did ample justice to the bountiful meal spread for them. The evidence thus given under oath by these Indians over twenty eight years after the occurrences testified to take place will be sent to the commissioner of Indian affairs in support of Dr McKay's and Mr Arnold's claims.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL

Henry Villard has postponed indefinitely his intended trip to Europe.

William Brown says that the New York News, owned by Ben Wood and himself cleared $102,000 last year.

Richard A Proctor the astronomer has decided to make his home during the rest of his life at St Joseph, Mo.

Swinburne says that Byron was no poet. It is more than probable that Swinburne is no judge of poetry.

The number of immigrants landed at New York last month was 40,401 a decrease of 7,422 as compared with the corresponding month last year.

Oil speculation has gained such magnitude that the sales in the different exchanges aggregate 50 000 000 daily and there are 38 000,000 pipe line certificates outstanding.

Jay Cooke whose fortune was swept away by the crash of 1873 is to-day one of the wealthiest men of Pennsylvania. He has investments in iron, coal, gold and silver mines and railroads reaching far into the millions.

The largest blank book ever made at the government printing office in Washington has just been finished. It is bound in sheepskin and Russia leather, is one foot and seven inches in breadth, contains 10 000 pages and weighs 140 pounds.

Edwin Arnold has in the Chicago Current a translation of an Italian poem "La Nonna de Barber" no discovered by him while in Italy last year. It is a pastoral poem of the fifteenth century written by Lorenzo di Medici and the Current has the exclusive publication at a cost of a trifle over $1000.

In Germany the retail beer vender is compelled to give a certain amount of beer—not foam—when a "glass" of beer is called for. To enable a beer drinker to see whether he receives the requisite quantity of beer the public scales marks every glass at the hight to which the beer exclusive of foam must go.

A Relic of the Boss System

Harper's Weekly in recently condemning the boss system of instructing delegates to vote for a particular candidate at the convention said:

The foolish practice of instructions to delegates has been generally though not universally abandoned by the conventions this year. It is a practice which converts a representative with discretion into a mere instrument and it is absurd because local conventions might as well announce their will and their number of votes for candidates than send thirty or forty proxy agents to a distant city at great expense and inconvenience to do the very same thing.

A handbill issued this year was as follows: A May Fair ducking pond on Monday next 24th June. Mr Hooton's dog Nero (with hardly a tooth in his head to hold a duck, but well known by his goodness to all that have seen him) hunts six ducks for a guinea against the bitch called the Fly, spaniel from the ducking pond on the other side of the water, who has beaten all she was hunted against, excepting Mr Hooton's dog. To begin at 2 o'clock. Mr Hooton begs his customers won't take it amiss to pay twopence at the gate and take a ticket which will be allowed as cash in their reckoning. CITY.

THE EXTENSIVE SALMON SHIPMENTS.—The Northern Pacific Refrigerator Car company have [illegible] eight cars specially designed for carrying Columbia river salmon east. H. N. Molloy, [illegible] years' experience in the shipment of [illegible], is general agent for the company here. All [illegible] with the Westinghouse air brake, [illegible] so that they can be attached to passenger trains. A special messenger goes [illegible] to see that the supply of ice is kept [illegible] temperature of the car kept steadily at 20 [illegible] of the shipments made by express in [illegible] the past two months have been profitable [illegible] that transportation charges are [illegible] a margin of profit. The result of [illegible] car shipped last Friday from Celilo is [illegible] with interest. Cost of the fish [illegible] about five cents a pound, freight [illegible] about seven cents. It fails to [illegible] the salmon will yield enough profit. [illegible] Mr. Molloy showed an [illegible] a letter from E. G. Blackford, [illegible] fish merchant, in which he [illegible] five boxes shipped from Portland [illegible] in absolutely perfect order, being [illegible] and handsome, and that the [illegible] could not be improved. In car [illegible] the salmon are packed in boxes in single [illegible] ice under and over them. One [illegible] a car load, each box running [illegible] according to size. [illegible] and [illegible] by a patent machine and the skin [illegible] The cars are attached to passenger [illegible] St. Paul thence by fast freight to [illegible] the refrigerator car company are [illegible] to send them on passenger [illegible] St. Paul to New York, reducing the [illegible] to seven days instead of nine. [illegible] Salmon will be shipped from [illegible] taken with fish nets from [illegible] the Cascades where they are taken [illegible] the lower Columbia. Mr. Molloy [illegible] New York is the only city that can [illegible] car load of salmon in one day, but parts [illegible] Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and [illegible] Chicago the lake fish come in so [illegible] that the Columbia river salmon [illegible] Another car load will be [illegible] in New York in a few days.

[illegible] COMING.—The oldest inhabitant [illegible] a spring more favorable for crops [illegible] the present. The importation of vegetables from California has nearly ceased and home [illegible], radishes, pie-plant and cabbages are [illegible] the market. Strawberries are coming [illegible] Gardeners in this vicinity will [illegible] their crop in market by June 1. [illegible] of the Bella Vista fruit farm [illegible] brought the first Oregon strawberries [illegible] last year, will probably begin to [illegible] about the 20th inst. They expect [illegible] to Montana this season but it [illegible] whether they can compete with the [illegible] market or not. From all sections [illegible] reports in regard to both fruit and [illegible]

[illegible] RECEIVED ITS NAME.—"Your first [illegible]" asked an OREGONIAN reporter of [illegible] east side train yesterday morning. "[illegible] will be my second trip," replied the [illegible] "I was present when the town was named. I had been holding court in Jackson[illegible] adjourned several [illegible] One took a [illegible] There was a fine little water power [illegible] number of settlers had gathered to take [illegible] building a mill. Most of them were [illegible] great admirers of Henry Clay, and [illegible] the place Ashland, in honor of the home [illegible] statesman."

[illegible] FREE.—A Chinaman who has been [illegible] on a charge of burglary was yesterday [illegible] the grand jury. Martin Smalldell [illegible] two small boys who were arrested [illegible] an up-town residence evidently [illegible] were released from jail, the [illegible] not a true bill against them [illegible] not so much because the evi[illegible] was not sufficient to convict [illegible] of that public sentiment which [illegible] should not be sent to the penitentiary [illegible] with hardened criminals. As has been [illegible] before, the need of a reform [illegible] is very pressing.

[illegible] BOAT.—Work is progressing [illegible] railroad ferryboat at Smith [illegible] yard. The hull is completed and [illegible] the deck nearly all laid. The posts [illegible] support the upper deck where the pilot [illegible] quarters are situated are in posi[illegible] expected that she will be launched the [illegible] week. It was expected that high [illegible] but the water has not come [illegible] to do much more on the boat [illegible] will be launched and taken to Al[illegible] machinery will be put in. She will [illegible] service in two months.

[illegible] PASSING COUNTERFEIT MONEY.—[illegible] States Marshal James Frush arrived [illegible] with a prisoner named William Moss, [illegible] passing bogus coin at Lebanon some [illegible] Moss and one Hamilton, it appears, had [illegible] five-cent nickels which had been [illegible] and they passed a number of [illegible] Hamilton was arrested soon [illegible] made his escape and after a long and [illegible] was captured a short time since in the [illegible] country. He will probably have an [illegible] to-day.

[illegible] CIVILIZATION.—The Nashville American [illegible] the following: "Colonel John B. Lewis [illegible] Walla, W. T., and Dr. R. L. C. White of [illegible] reached the city last night on their way [illegible] the recent meeting of the supreme lodge [illegible] Pythias, at New Orleans. The Times [illegible] Saturday says: Supreme Representa[illegible] of Washington Territory on his way [illegible] a day at Nashville with Supreme [illegible] White of Tennessee, who has kindly [illegible] explain the mysteries of civilization to [illegible] chief of the Walla Wallas."

[illegible] BY EXPRESSMEN.—The United Car[illegible] Baggage Transfer Company complain that [illegible] pass themselves off as employes [illegible] and then charge exorbitant prices [illegible] baggage. They excuse themselves [illegible] for this overcharge by saying the [illegible] cannot help it. The [illegible] this imposition is frequently [illegible] their name, and they wish every one to [illegible] they have a regular schedule of [illegible] reasonable in every respect.

[illegible] PERSONALS.—Major D. B. Poole, pay mas[illegible] will take station at Vancouver [illegible] commencing June 1. Lieut. Frederick [illegible] relieved from duty as aide-de-camp to [illegible] He will join his regiment, the Third [illegible] Edward B. Moseley, assistant sur[illegible] to department headquarters and [illegible] temporary duty at Vancouver bar[illegible] Information has been received at [illegible] the promotion of Second Lieut. [illegible] to first lieutenancy.

[illegible] THE ALLEGED LYNCHING.—The [illegible] for Walla Walla county, now in session [illegible] begun a legal investigation of [illegible] at Baker at Wallula Junction, [illegible] Fifteen witnesses were ex[illegible] the inquiry last Saturday. The inves[illegible] fruitless as those who per[illegible] lynching will not criminate them[illegible] do not know enough concern[illegible] an indictment on.

[illegible] REPAIRS.—The little steamer City of [illegible] at the boat yard on the east side [illegible] foot of U street for some slight repairs and [illegible] preparatory to the large sum [illegible] she is sure to obtain. A new pilot [illegible] built forward over the passenger [illegible] decided improvement. The place [illegible] of Bellwood on the route between Port[illegible] Oregon, is now temporarily filled by the [illegible]

[illegible] AT ARSON.—S. J. Bonnett and A. [illegible] got into a fight about half past [illegible] evening, near the corner of First and [illegible] and were arrested by Officer H[illegible] to the city jail. Their differences [illegible] of them appropriating to his own use [illegible] apron. Each deposited $10 as se[illegible] appearance in police court to-day.

[illegible]—The old horse sale of Wallis [illegible] attracted the usual crowd yesterday, who [illegible] of cotton [illegible], packages of last year's [illegible] from two bits to a dollar each, [illegible] and all manner of [illegible] good pistol for a dollar [illegible] good investment made.

[illegible]—Passed Heron yesterday [illegible] afternoon: D. A. Ross, M. J. Car[illegible], J. M. Stevenson, J. McLellan, [illegible] H. Quaile, Miss Ida Church, W. Belding, [illegible] O. Stair, A. Carson and wife.

[illegible]—Mr. E. L. B. White, editor of the [illegible] Enterprise, was married last Saturday [illegible] Miss Carol Lambert. Mr. White [illegible] among the craft in the [illegible] his fair young bride a life of [illegible] happiness.

WEISE'S ASSAULT CASE.—The examination of C. Weise for assault with intent to kill James Sullivan took place in the police court yesterday. It seems that Sullivan was quarreling with another drunken fellow and he saw Weise coming out from behind the bar, but owing to not having any eyes in the back of his head he did not see who struck him. Dr. Chapman testified that the wound was a very dangerous one and had produced concussion of the brain. It was inflicted with some blunt instrument. Several disreputable hangers on of Weise's dive swore that the blow was given by a mythical man whom no one knew, and who went no one knew where. The matter was taken under advisement.

FISHING AT THE FALLS.—The fishing is now very good at the falls at Oregon City. A party of six who went up there on Sunday caught twenty-one salmon, ranging in weight from two to seven pounds, and innumerable suckers, chubs and pike. These last are a great nuisance to the fishermen as they swarm in thousands and take off bait as fast as it can be put on. As salmon take about two bites [illegible] and a large quantity is used, the bait bill is very heavy. [illegible] going up there to fish will do well to provide themselves with spoons and save the cost of bait. The usual dollar is charged for the privilege of fishing. The sport will probably be better in two or three weeks.

THE HOTEL ROBBERY.—The case of F. A. Howard, manager of the American Exchange hotel, accused of the larceny of $2[illegible] came up before Judge Moreland yesterday. Several witnesses were examined for the prosecution. As has been stated, Howard received the money and put it in the safe. He and his clerk, Forbes, had the only two keys known of to the inner door. Forbes swore that he did not take the money—he did not know it was in the safe. The only witness for the defense was Howard himself, who testified that he did not know what had become of the money. The case was taken under advisement.

BOARD OF TRADE.

A regular meeting of the board of trade was held last night, President Macleay in the chair and twenty members present.

A communication was received from Hon. W. E. Chandler, secretary of the navy, answering inquiries relative to the flagship Hartford. He said that the vessel had been ordered to Panama and this order could not well be changed now. However another man of war would probably be sent to the Columbia river soon.

Letters were received from Senators Dolph and Slater on the same subject.

THE KALAMA BRANCH.

Answering an inquiry made at the last meeting relative to learning the probable time when goods could be shipped in bulk from Portland to Seattle, the following was received:

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY,
PRESIDENT'S OFFICE,
NEW YORK, April 26.

Donald Macleay, Esq., President Board of Trade, Portland, Or.: DEAR SIR: Yours of April 17 with communication from your board of trade is at hand. We do not expect to have the boat ready to transfer the cars before early fall. As soon as it is ready for use it is our intention either to open the Portland and Tacoma road or to carry cars by boat from Kalama, in either case avoiding breaking bulk.

Yours truly, ROBERT HARRIS, President.

PILOTING AND RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

A letter was received from Senator Dolph enclosing a copy of Senator Bayard's national pilot bill and asking an expression of the board upon its merits. It was referred to the committee on navigation with instructions to examine and report at the earliest practical moment—at a special meeting likely to be called in a few days.

The secretary read a copy of a telegram he had sent in the morning to Congressman George asking whether the report on appropriations for the Columbia river made last week was final, or whether something could not be done to secure more liberal appropriation. He was requested to wire an answer before evening, but none was received up to the hour of the meeting, hence the board could take no action in the matter.

Informal discussion of the subject followed, the impression prevailing that the committee on commerce of the house had decided that the government should not commence the work of improving the Columbia river bar this year. In that case it would not be out of place to demand more than $100,000 for the improvement of the lower Willamette and Columbia rivers.

The chair announced that he would call a special meeting of the board upon receipt of an answer from Mr. George if he thought such action advisable.

OTHER BUSINESS.

An invitation was received from H. S. Boyce, secretary of the national industrial congress, inviting the board to send delegates to the national meeting to be held in Chicago May [illegible].

The committee on membership reported favorably on the applications of Wm. McFall and A. A. Perkins, who were elected members.

Applications for membership were received from Dittenhoefer, Haas & Co. and H. Wolf & Bro. [illegible] reference. Adjourned.

BRIEF MENTION.

The State of California arrived here [illegible] last evening.

Five car loads of emigrants arrived from St. Paul yesterday.

The Gipsy will sail for Gray's harbor about Friday the 16th.

The Fleetwood will carry delegates to the grand lodge of Odd Fellows for $2.50 for the round trip.

The Idaho will sail from New Tacoma for New Westminster Thursday the 15th inst. with freight and passengers.

A small tugboat to be known as the Pro[illegible], to be used for towing sailboats at Astoria, is now on the ways at Paquet's boat yard.

C. E. Van Horn, the well known circus man, arrived here on the steamer last evening. He is the advance agent of [illegible], the Austrian conjuror.

Marshall Anderson, charged with larceny, was arraigned in the state circuit court yesterday, and pleaded not guilty. His case will be set for trial in a day or two.

New frame buildings have been put up in the place of the ones burned several weeks ago at the corner of First and Sherman streets, and are now nearly ready for occupancy.

It was reported last night that the committee on streets had bought three sprinkling wagons and will to-day commence the work of sprinkling the streets from Front to Fourth, between G to Madison.

The city levee now presents an active scene with men at work building the long substantial wharf. The heavy thud of the pile driver is heard from morning till night and a small forest of these foundations have already been driven.

S. B. White, the present incumbent, announces himself as an independent candidate for the office of justice of the peace in South Portland precinct. O. B. Phelps being also a candidate, the voters of that section have plenty of room for choice.

The river steamer Cleveland is preparing to take a trip to Yaquina bay, and is already receiving freight for that section. Her seaworthiness is a matter of experiment, but with everything favorable as it will be before she will cross the bar there is no danger to be anticipated.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. C. J. Smith returned Saturday from a visit to Kansas City.

Frank T. Hitchings of Stein, Simon & Co., San Francisco, is in the city.

Edward C. Walters, a former resident of Portland, returned yesterday from a three years' sojourn in the Kittitas country, and has brought quite a number of fine specimens of gold, silver and copper bearing quartz from the [illegible] mining district.

Rev. Dr. G. H. Atkinson leaves on Thursday for the east, to be gone about six weeks. He will attend the annual meeting of the Home Missionary society at Saratoga, N. Y., representing that portion of the society whose labors extend over the Pacific north west.

Miss Robinson of Boston, a lawyer by profession, admitted to the bar by the supreme court of Massachusetts, is in the city. She is out here spying out the land and will extend her trip to Seattle. She will probably remain on this coast and engage in the practice of her profession.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE TIVOLI.—"Olivette" drew a packed house at the Tivoli last night, and went with a smoothness not usually attendant upon first night performances. Indeed, nothing was lacking for a complete presentation of the popular opera. Principals and chorus came in for generous applause. "Olivette" will be given throughout the week.

High License in Chicago.

Chicago Evening Journal.

The high license law is becoming known by its fruits. It is greatly reducing the number of groggeries wherever it is in force, and will keep on reducing them.

Ho, for the Excursion!

Parties accompanying Mr. J. A. Childs on his excursion May 13, who contemplate going east of Chicago, should bear in mind that they can save money and much inconvenience by purchasing tickets reading over the "Pennsylvania Lines" through to destination or nearest ticketing point. The Pennsylvania, which is acknowledged to be the model railroad of America, have adopted all the improvements and appliances known to modern skill and invention which contribute to the comfort and security of travel. The scenery on the line of the Pennsylvania road is unsurpassed. For information regarding rates, tickets, etc., call on or address J. A. Childs, corner Second and Morrison streets, A. L. Maxwell, agent O. R. & N. R'y, foot of Ash street, or J. B. Kirkland, Pacific coast agent, No. 10 Washington street, Portland.

GRAND EXCURSION TO THE EAST.

Parties contemplating going east with the party leaving Thursday, the 15th inst., should not fail to call for and see that their tickets from St. Paul to Chicago read via the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, the famous Royal Route. This is the shortest and finest line to Chicago and all eastern cities. Steel track, magnificent day coaches, luxurious sleepers and the finest dining cars that ever ran on wheels. It is acknowledged by all Oregonians that have traveled over it to be the perfection of railroading. Be positive and inform the ticket agents that you desire the Royal Route. For further information call at the office No. 2 Stark st., or [illegible] W. H. MEAD, Pass. Agt.

House furnishings can be had cheapest at Birmingham's, 244 and 246 First street. Ash, maple and walnut suits, parlor, dining room, library and kitchen furniture, paper hangings, etc., at lower prices than ever before offered in Portland.

THE MURPHY-MANNING FIGHT.

Sharp Contest between Two Evenly Matched Men for Five Rounds—Murphy Wins by a Foul.

About 600 people were attracted to Mechanics' pavilion last evening by the announcement that a hard glove fight would take place there between Tom Manning of this city and John Murphy of Colorado. A ring had been roped off in the center of the hall with several rows of chairs around it for spectators, but the great majority preferred the gallery, which was lined around its entire length.

Chief of Police Parrish was in attendance and several of his [illegible] were to be seen among the crowd. As a preliminary to the event of the evening three sparring exhibitions with soft gloves were given. The first was between [illegible] Sullivan, the champion, and one McCormick, [illegible] slapped each other and dodged about for four rounds. Then Messrs. Killeen and O'Neil punched each other in the snout and boxed the ears [illegible] winding up the third round with a [illegible]. The third exhibition was between Billie Morgan, who fought Manning last year, and Bates [illegible]. Morgan seemed in better trim than when he was licked by Manning [illegible] and put his head in the way of his opponent's gloves and then eluded his blows [illegible] to the delight of the gallery.

At the end of the soft glove business there was a long and tiresome wait, but at length Manning appeared accompanied by his seconds, and was followed a minute after by Murphy and his attendants.

They were introduced by the master of ceremonies, George [illegible], a man who ought to be able to stomach a great deal of fighting, as he had a good deal of stomach. He stated that this was no prize fight but merely a friendly contest to see who was the better man of the two. It was to be fought with hard gloves according to the Marquis of Queensbury rules. He then read the rules and the gloves were [illegible].

Chief of Police Parrish took a careful survey of them, as he had been solicited to allow the parties to fight in kid gloves, and had refused. They were much smaller than the common glove and of a much harder [illegible], and although not strictly speaking deadly weapons were well calculated to knock the stuffing out of a soft man.

Both fighters were stripped to drawers and slippers and both were muscular, well made men, Murphy being a trifle under Manning in height but a little the broader across the chest. Both showed a little more adipose tissue than necessary.

THE EVENT.

Billy Morgan was chosen referee and the fighters advanced, shook hands and then squared away. Murphy made the first hostile demonstration by landing his right on Manning's bread basket. The grunt which followed showed that it was no love tap, and Manning hastened to return the compliment. A rapid interchange of blows followed, both parties pressing forward till it ended in a close locked embrace. At the cry of "break loose" they separated and Murphy got in a vicious blow on his opponent's nasal organ which tapped the claret. Manning then made a rush and they clinched and slugged away till ordered to break loose, when Manning backed Murphy up against the ropes and they closed again amid yells of [illegible] of that hugging. Time was called without either party having gained any perceptible advantage, and both seemed pretty well winded.

On coming up for the second round both parties sparred cautiously for an opening, but none offering they worked at each other and after interchanging a few blows closed again. This rapid rush and closing business was repeated several times, when after breaking loose they came up cautiously and Murphy let fly with his left, striking Manning on the potato trap, and following the blow with a heavy right hander on the cheek sent him to grass, or where the grass should have been. The knock down made Manning groggy, but he was up inside of the ten seconds allowed, and after a lively interchange of blows they closed again when time was called. So far it appeared as if Murphy were the better man of the two, his gloves being red with the blood of Manning, which flowed from the nose and a scratch on the cheek. Both were considerably distressed and received a vigorous fanning and shampooing from their seconds.

Both came up very cautiously to the third round and [illegible] Manning seemed inclined to press matters, while Murphy danced around as if desirous of avoiding close quarters and launched some heavy blows which fell short. They finally made a rush and Manning got his opponent's head in chancery and gave him an uppercut which removed a patch of cuticle from his cheek and nearly closed an eye. Deafening yells went up from the crowd, who had been very noisy and demonstrative all through, cheering both the fighters and making considerable confusion. An exchange of blows followed, Manning getting in a facer and receiving a blow in the ribs in return. When they went to their seats at the call of time both were pretty well blown, but Manning appeared the less distressed of the two.

The fourth round was opened by Murphy, who landed a sounder on Manning's scoop and got a facer in return. Manning kept pressing the fight, Murphy acting more on the defensive. It was evident that they were very evenly matched, and the [illegible] were about evenly divided. There was but little rapid hitting in this round. Murphy got in a good one on Manning's [illegible], bleeding smeller, and the faces and eyes of both parties were [illegible] that it was only a question as to endurance and wind.

The fifth round was commenced with cautious sparring, followed by a rush and some heavy slugging, ending in a close. Both parties were getting tired and the novelty of the business had worn off. Short bouts of sparring were followed by closing, Manning once more getting Murphy's head in chancery and giving him a heavy blow in the face. Murphy went to his seat much distressed, while Manning's wind seemed somewhat better, but both parties were pretty well used up, not from blows but from sheer exhaustion.

On the cry of time for the sixth round Murphy stepped briskly across the ring, and meeting Manning coming from his corner struck a blow which fell short and he went down on his knee. Manning struck him in this position and a cry of foul was raised. Great confusion followed, and when order was in some measure restored the referee decided the blow a foul, and gave the fight to Murphy.

The fighters advanced and shook hands, and Manning announced that on Murphy's return from Butte, Montana, about two weeks hence he would fight him for $[illegible].

The spectators evidently thought they had had their money's worth, as there was no growling, but many were inclined to look upon the windup as a put up job. It is also claimed by well posted ones that the battle belonged to Manning, as Murphy committed a foul when he went on his knee without being struck.

Attention.

Those who contemplate joining the grand excursion to the east under the management of Mr. J. A. Child, advertised to depart on the 15th inst., should bear in mind that the ticketing and traveling of these gentlemen will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Child, who will accompany the party. The great Albert Lea Route, which conveyed a large share of the pioneers who made their excursion east in September last, is again in the field for a liberal share of the patronage of those who go with Mr. Child's excursion. The Albert Lea Route runs the most elegant Pullman palace sleeping and luxurious palace dining cars that run from St. Paul to Chicago without change. To receive the comforts of your own home you should arrange with Mr. Child to give you tickets that read by the great Albert Lea Route. Gone East.

Mr. Andrew Roberts, proprietor of the popular clothing house corner First and Alder streets, has gone east for about six weeks to select more goods for his immense establishment. We would judge by the appearance of his shelves and counters that there is very little room left for more goods. His stock of gents' furnishing goods cannot be excelled in town. Fancy percale shirts and rowing shirts, also a beautiful line of neckwear, fancy nightshirts, etc. His stock of hats is as complete as any hat store in town. He is also prepared to do first class tailoring with a first class cutter. Give him a call.

THE EAST SIDE.

MEETING OF INDEPENDENTS.

The regular meeting of the Union Republican Club occurred last evening at Neppach's hall. Dr. H. C. Coley, president, opened the meeting by stating it was decided to have a private meeting of the members of the club before proceeding to business. The members met in the ante room, when the president informed them that the secretary, who had been elected secretary of the Loyal Republican Club, had been requested to surrender the books of the club but had refused to do so before consulting the executive committee, and asked the further pleasure of the members. J. S. Buchtel then moved that the Union Republican Club be now declared dissolved and that members [illegible] to the main hall to reorganize as the Citizens' Union Club. Carried.

Upon proceeding to the main hall President Coley stated the result of the conference, and T. J. Matlock was elected temporary president. Wm. [illegible] was elected temporary secretary.

On motion of Dr. Coley it was carried that a committee of three be appointed to draft a set of resolutions for the government of the club, and the chair appointed as such committee Dr. Coley, republican, and J. A. Newell and D. D. Neer, democrats.

Upon motion of A. I. Kirk the committee was also instructed to report on permanent organization.

During the retirement of the committee speeches were made by J. W. Kern (rep.), F. R. Turnbull (dem.), S. C. Price (rep.), W. P. Burney (dem.) and E. O. Donald (dem.), the burden of all of which was the same hue and cry about corruption and fraud.

Dr. Coley submitted the report of the committee, which was as follows:

"Resolved, 1st. That this club be known as the Citizens' Union Club of East Portland.

2d. That we recognize no party lines, either democratic or republican, but as citizens of this city we agree one with one another that we will support the ticket nominated by the joint convention held in Portland May 10, 1884, and such declaration of intention shall be the necessary qualification for membership in this club."

The third resolution designates the officers and requires their election by ballot, and the fourth and last states the order of business.

The report was adopted unanimously.

Dr. Coley then submitted the following additional resolutions, which were also adopted:

"Resolved, 1st. That we recognize in the constitution of the United States and in the constitutional laws properly administered the only safety upon which we as a free people can depend.

2. That free education is the bulwark of American liberty, and that we will use every effort in our power to advance the public school interests in Multnomah county.

3. That we as American citizens are opposed to corruption in office, and will use every effort in our power to purify the politics of the country."

On motion of D. D. Neer the rules were suspended and the club proceeded to the election of permanent officers by acclamation, and the following were elected in accordance with the report of the committee:

President—T. J. Matlock.
Vice presidents—First, D. D. Neer; second, A. I. Kirk; third, Joseph Buchtel.
Secretary—F. C. Baer.
Treasurer—A. H. Logan.
Sergeant at arms—T. C. Smith.

The manner proposed of electing an executive committee was also dispensed with, and the following committee was appointed by the chair: J. A. Newell, Frank Payne and H. R. Hunsaker.

An opportunity being given to sign the articles of organization, thirty names were subscribed thereto, to-wit: Frank Payne, J. M. Silker, F. A. Jones, F. Thorn, E. O. Donald, C. Garrison, Philip Walker, D. I. Leathers, H. R. Hunsaker, W. M. Burney, J. N. Morgan, T. C. Smith, William Luderhild, W. B. Gilson, H. Meyer, Henry Parker, T. J. Matlock, A. H. Logan, A. Gates, J. Austin, William F. Long, A. I. Kirk, J. W. Kern, Joseph Buchtel, J. B. Foss, H. Burbank, J. D. Thayer, S. C. Price and others.

On motion the meeting adjourned to meet next Friday night at Hall & Stott's hall, the time and place of the meeting of the democratic club, which it is proposed to dissolve at that time in order to co-operate with the citizens' union club, and when it is expected that several gentlemen will address the meeting.

NOTES FROM HERON.

HERON, M. T., May 9.

Yesterday a German by the name of Fred Smith, a brewer by trade, lately from San Francisco, came down from the mountains to the railroad track just west of here with his clothes torn, hat gone and his hands and feet badly frozen. He states that on the evening of the 1st inst. he started on foot out of this town going west, and when he got about a mile down the railroad he came across a gang of men who had dark lanterns. They, by throwing the rays of light in his face, and engaging him in conversation, walked him from the track into the thick timber and there threw chloroform or some such liquid in his face, which made him insensible, then robbed him of $140 which he had in a roll of greenbacks in his inside vest pocket. When he came to, his mind must have been affected, although he claims that he had his right senses, for he tells some very strange stories of what he saw and heard. He believes that the strange sights and sounds were produced by the robbers. He wandered in the mountains five days and nights without anything to eat, walking in the thick timber and snow all the time.

In the last two weeks this town has been infested by a gang of bunko sharps and three-card men. They found it necessary to leave Spokane, W. T., and other towns along the line because officers of the law were too numerous for them. But here they are free from all such encumbrances and can do as they have a mind to. They dress well in the style of business men. Two of the gang run a jewelry store on a kind of lottery system. They make this place their headquarters and work the passenger trains between Missoula and Spokane.

The railroad company's large, artistically finished hotel at this point was opened to the public on the 7th instant by the Northern Pacific Dining Car Company, under the management of J. N. Strong. This makes it much pleasanter for the United States mail agents and all trainmen on the Idaho and Rocky Mountain divisions, who lay over here, this being the end of their run. Also most any number of travelers can find first-class accommodations in this finely furnished hotel.

Heron is getting quite a population of healthy, happy little ones, and the citizens intend having a school here as soon as possible.

Most of the business men in town are improving the looks of their buildings, and the town in general, by putting on a new coat of paint. Hawes & Cheney are making various improvements on the interior of their already highly finished billiard parlor. Postmaster W. J. Quirk is putting in another lot of new postoffice boxes for the accommodation of the public and improving the large wholesale and retail establishment of W. J. Quirk & Co., ready for the summer trade.

Charles Morton, late of Dillon, M. T., has lately begun business here in the produce and commission line. He is well pleased with the town and the bright prospects of the surrounding country.

The Pioneer hotel, Gus Smith proprietor, has lately been renovated. It is having quite a run of late. Numerous other business places, which are too numerous to here itemize, have made many alterations and improvements. The whole town has a better and brighter outlook than it has had since the town was started, which is not over a year ago.

As I sit writing this evening, I can see the lights of the miners' camp fires away up on the side of Mount Heron, blazing and flickering as it grows darker, until they seem like large stars floating in the distant sky. Now and again all through the day can be heard the boom of the blasts put off in these mines. The sound coming from above as it does has a peculiar oddity about it. By watching the spot on the mountain side that the miners are at work on, one can plainly see the rock and dirt belch forth and fly high in the air, and many large rocks roll far down the mountain.

Robins have been seen at Marshfield with white spots on their heads and wings. They had probably grown gray headed waiting for decent spring weather.—[illegible]

SOMETHING NEW.—Alisky, Baum & Co. are now prepared to furnish their patrons in their refreshment saloon, 145 First street, a change in lunches, consisting of chicken pot pie, meat croquette, chicken croquette, lobster, shrimp and chicken salads, and the usual bill of fare as heretofore.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, PORTLAND.

Narrative for the Year Ending April 1, 1884.

A. L. LINDSLEY, D. D., PASTOR.

Public worship has been regularly maintained in this church and in Watson's addition, and occasionally in the chapel at Ilwaco. The attendance at [illegible] is increasing. Several week day services are maintained, including the meetings of the young people's association. Its aim is Christian culture through mutual assistance and support, and its influence will be very salutary, not only within its chosen field but around it and far beyond it. The Woman's Foreign Missionary society continues its good work, and the sewing society, which is also a home missionary society, is doing much to maintain the social life of the church and to extend its privileges among strangers.

In the Sabbath school the exercises are scriptural and devotional, the shorter catechism is taught, the teachers are professing Christians.

The pastoral work is a task which is ever increasing and never finished. The number of visits and interviews recorded exceeds 1800, sermons, addresses and funerals 17[illegible]. Preaching was maintained through the twelve months of the year with the exception of three Sabbaths in August, the vacation month.

Regular collections are taken up for all the objects recommended by the general assembly, once a year, and for home missions four times a year. Contributions are made to other objects also during the year, as the seamen's, bible and temperance causes, Y. M. C. A., etc.

Our relation to other denominations is cordial, and we co-operate with them in bible, temperance and other catholic causes.

The missionary work in the northern limits of this parish, conducted by Rev. R. J. Laughlin, has been continued through the year. The session has met there, and the pastor has gone over the whole ground and preached there repeatedly. That part of the work is difficult, but we cherish the belief that the interest will be increased after the erection of a house of worship, for which we are now making provision. The Sunday school has been well sustained, under the charge of Mr. William M. Ladd, one of our members. Some of the teachers are from Calvary Presbyterian church, who thus manifest their interest in the missionary work of our growing city.

Our little church—a colony from this—at [illegible] has been greatly afflicted by the loss of its young and promising minister, Rev. George Sneath, who was removed by death. His place has not yet been supplied. But the congregation have erected a house of worship which is free from debt and nearly ready for dedication. Valuable assistance toward this building was contributed by our congregation.

The missionary work at Albina, where a few members of this church reside, and which was under the pastoral supervision of this church, is being carried on with promising prospects by the minister in charge, Rev. W. O. Forbes.

Thus the way is prepared for another organization, which we hope will be as prosperous as the three other churches which were a short time ago component parts of this. This organization was effected Sunday, May 4, with thirty members.

W. C. T. U. CORRESPONDENCE.

Two and one-half miles south of Portland, on the macadam road, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union are carrying forward a growing and successful mission. Preaching services are held regularly once in two weeks on Sunday evening by Rev. Mr. [illegible], and every Sabbath at [illegible] A. M. Sunday school is conducted by two ladies from the city who are members of the union. A happier and more appreciative school perhaps is not often found. In age the members of this school range all the way from four years to mature and middle life. On last Saturday evening a concert was given by the school, which was a success in every particular, the proceeds of which give promise of a self sustaining mission in the near future. The recitations were by different members of the school and would do credit to some of our city schools. The music was in charge of Professor Sedlak and gave excellent satisfaction, especially that given by the professor on the violin and the duet by Miss Sedlak and Miss [illegible] from the city. Great credit is due Mrs. Sedlak and the Misses Tucker for the clean and beautifully decorated room.

U. S. MARSHAL'S SALE.—In the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon. In Admiralty. The Steam Ferry Boat Albina, Nathan Hackett, et al., libellants. United States of America, District of Oregon, ss.—Whereas an order was made on the 5th day of May, 1884, by the Honorable Matthew P. Deady, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon, in a cause therein pending wherein Nathan Hackett et al. are libellants against the steam Ferry Boat Albina, her tackle, apparel, machinery and furniture, commanding that the said steam ferry boat Albina, her tackle, apparel, machinery and furniture should be sold by the Marshal of the United States for said District as upon execution in an action at law, pursuant to the interlocutory sentence and decree of said court made and pronounced on the 5th day of May, 1884, and that the money arising from such sale be paid to the clerk of said Court on the first Monday of June, 1884.—Now, therefore, I hereby give notice that in pursuance of said order I will on Tuesday the 27th day of May, 1884, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the wharf near the ferry landing at Albina, in said District, where said vessel now lies, sell the said Steam Ferry Boat Albina, her tackle, apparel, machinery and furniture, at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor, for cash in hand.

Dated at Portland, said District, this 5th day of May, 1884.

EDWARD H. KEARNEY,
United States Marshal, District of Oregon.

TUESDAY MORNING MAY 13, 1884.

OUT OF PITY.

From Cassell's Magazine, London.

She was just 17; the very youngest little bride that any one remembered ever coming to reign at Arntown Towers; the sweetest, daintiest little Lady Fielding that the country had ever welcomed.

To herself it was like a dream; it had come so fast; it seemed as if all her life had lived itself in those six months, the leaving her English school and going out to her father's plantation in Ceylon, so proud to be his housekeeper and companion; the strange, brief life on the up-country coffee estate. Then the young English stranger who passed through Lindoola, in his rather vague wanderings for adventure's sake, and who was received and entertained at Holme Harcourt with the delightful open-handed hospitality of the colonies.

And then the awful night, when the sudden terrible stroke of cholera left her fatherless and life seemed a great black void; and the chaplain's wife had been good to her and kept her from dying in despair; and Sir Harry Fielding had been still more good; and then—and then—she was resting her poor little orphaned head on a heart that was kind and true as her own father's, and a strong arm was close around her slender waist, and the voice she liked alone to hear, of all the voices around her, was telling her she should never know another sorrow he could guard her from. He seemed the only real thing in all that dream time; the sad past, and the present that was so happy, but just as unlike reality. Was it really herself, simple little Nesta Harcourt, that people were fussing over and petting and welcoming home as if she had been a royal princess?

Perhaps it was as well she could not realize it, or her head might have been turned. Why, had not the whole week Harry and she were spending with his sister, Mrs. Mostyn, to present Nesta to the country side, been one round of festivities, of which she was the queen? This evening they had all driven to a grand concert in the country town, to hear a famous singer. And Nesta in her wonderful golden satin gown, rich with embroidery and lace, with her eyes outshining the diamonds on her white neck, and her cheek flushed with its pretty shy pink, had been an attraction only second to the queen of song herself. She felt a little weary with the excitement and the happiness, now that they had reached home and were having supper in the great hall, for the concert had forced them to dine rather earlier than usual.

The house was crowded with guests, and they were all vehemently declaring that the night was hardly begun yet, and they meant to finish it with a few games. The furniture in the blue drawing-room was being hastily moved, and Nesta's head sank at the thought of further exertion; her head ached and she was worn out. She would slip away quietly to bed, and leave Harry to make her excuses to Eleanor. Where was Harry, by the way? She had not seen him since they sat down to supper, and he and that beautiful Miss Trafford were talking in the doorway. A hasty search through the nearest rooms had no result, and Nesta stopped by an open door to glance in at the half-cleared drawing room.

Two portly dowagers were deep in conversation, their heads bent together behind their fans; but their voices rose above the music Eleanor was playing, and Nesta could not help hearing what they said.

"Gladys Trafford; yes, indeed!" cried the black velvet gown to the purple brocade. "A very, very old love affair that, my dear. He and she were almost inseparable, and a most suitable match it would have been. The two oldest families in the county; his equal in position and fortune. Lord Stourbridge's estates are next his, you know, and Gladys is heiress to a great part."

What made Nesta's heart give such a leap, and her feet feel spell bound to the spot where she stood? Arnwood Towers was the only place near the Traffords. It was as if her whole being were strained to hear the rest; she never thought of eves-dropping, poor child; it was life and death work with her.

"And why didn't it come about?" asked the purple brocade.

"Heaven knows! A lovers' tiff, I suppose, or some such rubbish. It's a thousand pities! A Lady Fielding has always been at the head of the county society, and Gladys Trafford is just made for the position with her beauty and cleverness and talents. She has always been immensely popular."

"And who is the girl he has married? She seems a nice little thing enough."

"Oh, a harmless sort of creature; pink and white prettiness, nothing more. She was a planter's daughter in Ceylon, or somewhere; and he was staying with them when the father died. She was left quite friendless and destitute, and he married her out of pity. He was always a Quixotic goose Harry Fielding."

The spell was off now, and Nesta, white as death, was hurrying up the stairs to her room. There was a little sofa in a sheltered nook in the corridor, and there sat Harry—the missing Harry—and the woman he should have married.

Nesta sped past, but as she fled she saw Harry bend his head to kiss the beautiful hand he was holding, and she heard his low murmur—

"If I had only known years ago, things might have been so different!"

On, on till her own door closed behind her and she gazed wildly round at the pretty ornaments that strewed her bower, as if she had never seen them before. She flung the diamonds from her throat and wrists as if they hurt her, and sank into a chair beside the quaint old ebony table, leaning her head, with its tangle of crisp brown hair, down on her folded arms. She did not shed a tear, but her brain seemed on fire.

Beside her stood the tall vase of rushes that Harry and she had gathered from the lake only yesterday. Wasn't it a hundred years ago?

"Never another sorrow he could guard her from?" Well it was true; he couldn't help this; it wasn't his fault; he had meant to do right; he had married her "out of pity" when he loved another woman. It must be her fault, not his; yes, because she was pink-and-white and nothing more; and she ought to have known pity wasn't love, only it had seemed so like it!

"If he had known years ago, things might have been so different!" Might they not still? What if she were to go away that very night, and never trouble him again? She had not a friend in the world except her old Brighton schoolmistress; she would go to her and beg her to take her in, and let her teach the little children. And, perhaps, she might die soon, and Harry could be happy with the woman he had always loved. Nesta felt as if death wouldn't be long in coming, she felt so ill now.

She got up to fetch a time table. Yes, the mail train passed through Middlehampton at 1 o'clock; it was only 12 now, and, though she couldn't very well understand the puzzling figures, she thought it must stop at the little station just the other side of the park.

She drew her blotting book to her and began to write fast. A big tear or two splashed down on the paper, but she wiped them patiently away; it must be clear, that Harry might read it.

"They say you only married me for pity," she wrote, "I might have guessed it, my darling, but you were so good to me that I never, never did. I can't make you free again; but it is better for us never to see each other any more, and perhaps I may die, and you can go back to the woman they say you have always loved. I saw you just now, when you kissed her hand, and said things might have been so different if you had only known years ago. Yes, they would have been different for us all. God bless you, my poor, good boy! you were not to blame."

She paused and looked up.

"What shall I sign it?" she said. "I am not his wife any more, for only love really makes a marriage."

Her eye fell on her little wedding ring, its brightness scarcely tarnished yet. She stooped and pressed her lips to it gently, solemnly.

"Oh, Harry, my Harry," she whispered, "if it had only been love, not pity."

She rose and slipped off the golden satin gown and put on a dark, warm dress instead.

"I must even go away from him in the things he gave me," she said as she fastened her long fur cloak with its silver clasps. "I haven't a single gown that was mine before I knew him. He has even dressed me out of charity. His pity has been more generous than other people's love."

She opened the French window in her dressing room and stepped out on the balcony, whence a flight of steps led down to the terrace below. She glanced back at the pretty room, with its Japanese cabinets, and blue-and-white china, and the ebony table where the letter to Harry lay, with the light full upon it, so that he could not miss it. Then she shut the casement sharply behind her, and resolutely turned away.

The moon was bright with a fitful brightness—now almost as light as day, now hidden behind hurrying clouds—and it was bitterly cold. Nesta drew her cloak tighter around her, and tried to walk fast, but she was desperately weary, and could only stumble along. Somehow the way to the little gate had never seemed so incomprehensibly long. Surely she could not have missed her way? The moon and the clouds were playing such pranks that one could not see the way, and her heart had been too full to notice all the turns. It was as black as [illegible] now; a darkness that might be felt. Nesta took a few steps forward, then stopped short, by some mysterious instinct, just as the moon shone out clear and bright once more, its golden sparkle reflected as by a thousand broken mirrors in the water of the lake which slumbered at her feet. A strange, sharp pain shot through her heart, as she saw the very rushes Harry and she had been gathering yesterday. Yesterday? A thousand years ago; when she was happy.

A wild thought flashed across her brain; she had wished to die; would it not be better for Harry and for herself. Yes, and for that other woman, if she were lying under those cold smiling waters in a dreamless sleep? It was only a moment, her soul was too white and too brave for more; she recoiled with a start of horror; but ah! the bank was worn and smooth; her little feet slipped on the edge; she threw out her hands to stop herself, but the frozen grass slid through her fingers; there was one great sharp cry, and a pale sweet face lay still among the rushes in the silent moonlight.

It was dark and warm and deliciously restful when she knew anything again. She heard Harry's low voice before ever she opened her eyes; and felt his clasp of her hand—Harry's hand clasp, there was no other like it anywhere—and thought it must be heaven, and was glad she had done with earth, since this was so much better. And so she slept again.

And when next she woke she knew that the clouds that she seemed to lie on, clouds soft and billowy, were her own bed, nothing more ethereal; and she was aware it must be earth still, but felt it did not matter since it could be so like heaven, for Harry's voice and Harry's hand were still there; and she slept again, smiling gently.

But the next time she woke, the hand and voice were missing, and only Harry's back was visible in the room beyond, as she raised herself on her pillows. And as she rose she caught sight of herself in the long Psyche glass opposite and started at the reflection. For all her tangle of brown hair was cut short, and there was no pink-and-white prettiness now, only great dark eyes and a small white face. And as she fell back on her pillow, half from surprise and half from weakness, for she was very feeble, the bells burst out clear and sweet and mystical, in a perfect carol of exultant joy.

"Christmas bells! Is it Christmas?" she said, "Why, it was November when I died!"

And as Harry turned and hurried to her side she smiled up at him and asked again:

"Christmas? Is it really Christmas, Harry?" but he only bent to catch her in his arms.

She yielded to his kisses, then suddenly she tried to push him from her.

"Harry, you must not—you must not!" she said.

He saw the troubled look in her eyes, and knew that memory was coming back.

"Yes, I must," he said, "my little darling, my blessing, my life! The doctor says I may tell you all about it, for the worry will hurt you more than the talking; and, oh! how I have waited for this moment to come! It has been one long nightmare since the minute I heard you scream, and ran up just in time to see you sink."

"Then it was you who found me? Oh, Harry!"

"Yes, you must hear it all. I came to your room five minutes after you must have left it, and there was the time table open and your little note, bless it! and so I just set off for the station as hard as I could go. I had almost reached the park gate when that cry came—off to the right—and I turned just in time."

His voice broke and he bent his head down to hers.

"Nesta, it was all a lie—a vile, infamous lie, whoever told it. Gladys Trafford and I were always dear old boy-and-girl friends, nothing more. I knew my cousin Wilfred loved her, and I always thought she had something to do with his going to Australia, years ago. It was only that night she confessed to me that they had been engaged all these years, and Wilfred was trying to make a fortune for her sake. I told her I would soon put all that right; and then I scolded her for never having told me before when I could have saved them both all these weary years of waiting. Nesta!"—for her face was hidden, and she was sobbing softly—"you will not doubt me again?"

"Never, never, never! not if you tell me yourself! But, Harry," in a whisper which scarcely reached his ear, "did you really marry me out of pity?"

"Yes, my sweetheart—the very sincerest pity for myself!"

And Nesta never asked any more questions.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, May 12.

The week opens with rather a better feeling than the close of last witnessed. The freight movement at the moment is large, both by rail and steamer. The Oregon carried the largest cargo leaving here by steamer in several months past. Another car load of salmon was billed for the east to-day by the Pillar Rock Packing Company.

Overland receipts include 12 pkgs tobacco, 2 bbls dried apples.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 48 hours: 840 ctls wheat, 1020 bbls flour, 576 ctls oats, 162 ctls bran, 30 ctls millstuff, 939 sks potatoes 4434 [illegible] hides, 84 cs eggs, 13 bxs fruit, 13 bxs butter; also 5631 ctls wheat, 100 bbls flour, 87,387 lbs wool, 8235 lbs hides from the eastern section.

EXPORTS—Per steamer Oregon to San Francisco: 5490 ctls wheat, 11,694 hf 9135 qr sks flour, 500 sks (200 lbs each) salt, 234 lbs goat wool, 127,235 lbs wool, 1 cs blankets, 1 cs flannels, 3 cs cassimeres; 2 bls furs, 33 bdls calfskins, 270 green 107 dry hides, 19 bdls sheep skins, 21 bls deer skins, 1 rl leather, 2 bbls tallow, 40 bbls sulphur, 4 bdls 22 bbls scrap iron, 162 pcs heads, 500 pkgs stoves, 2157 sks copper ore, 8300 ft maple, 1300 ft ash, $41,600 treasure.

FREIGHTS—The market drags, with no demand for the few ships now here.

WHEAT—The cargoes market abroad to-day is no worse than neglected, but spot is a penny lower. Farmers' deliveries last week were large, and this with finer weather has apparently affected spot values. Chicago for June is lower, and in 10 days has suffered a drop of 9 cents. Speculation at Chicago and New York has recently been lively, even bordering on wildness. So certain were most operators that prices must advance, that they rushed in. Now the same ones are unloading and values suffer. San Francisco to-day feels the general influence more keenly, buyers having paused and refused new business. Warm weather obtains along the Pacific slope, Portland showing the highest thermometer, 74, at noon. The local wheat market is in neglect, exporters having no wants to fill, and millers content with picking up small lots in the interior at about their own figures. The general tendency now appears toward more ease with lessened values, yet confidence is expressed that it will be only temporary. The Oregon took out 5433 centals for Schwabacher Bros.

FLOUR—Included in the Oregon's cargo was 8135 qr sks Eugene City brands, 10,000 hf sks from Portland mills, 1293 hf sks from Oregon City mills, and 452 bbls other brands, in all 8831 bbls. The market presents nothing of new interest. The present export movement cannot last very much longer. Demand for local uses is steadily good at old prices.

WOOL—Shippers by the Oregon were Christy & Wise, Hulm & Hart, and Allen & Lewis. Receipts are steadily good for the season, and local warehouses are securing storage lots. Outside markets present nothing new. In a local way there is no sales being made.

OATS—The top selling price is now 48 cents for best feed. At this figure a liberal quantity is offered, but the crowded condition of the market renders business slow.

POTATOES—Only in a small way 55@60c had. A very small demand rules, and it is easily satisfied. To realize promptly a lower figure must be accepted.

FRIED FRUITS—From the east to-day 200 bxs apples were received. The market is almost entirely supplied with eastern dried. Local cuts little figure in the market. We quote: Sun dried apples 9@10c, as to package, boxes 15@16c, eastern barrels 10c; pears, boxes, 16c; plums, boxes 15@16c; pitted plums, sun cured, 13@15c; peaches in sacks, 13@14c; Oregon prunes, 12c.

POULTRY—Chickens range from $4 50 to $7 00, as to condition and request; others unchanged.

EGGS—Supplies quite free, and selling at 12½c. The demand is good.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The Oregon sailed at 2:09 A. M. with 1795 tons of freight.

The Olive S. Southard has crossed out for Queenstown.

Our telegraphic shipping news contains many items of interest to this port to-day.

The Colomb is thirty-six days out from Hong Kong.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.

Weather cloudy and cool; wind light west.

Receipts—75 000 ctls wheat, including 55,600 in ship; 38,000 qr sks flour 5000 ctls oats; 2350 sks potatoes, 10,000 doz eggs.

Freights—Inactive at last quoted rates. Brig Courtney Ford loads lumber at Port Blakeley for Hobutui.

Wheat—Spot quiet, asking prices unchanged; futures easier; No 1 white, seller the year, $1 41¼; buyer the season, $1 58, buyer the year, $1 69.

Flour—Dull at last quotations.

Barley—Feed firmer; offerings smaller, with improved demand, principally to fill contracts. Sales of good bay feed at 85c; prices for brewing unchanged; futures firm; No 1) feed, buyer the season, 87c; buyer year, 90c. It is rumored that the Br str Bell Rock has been chartered to load barley for England.

Oats—Quiet, with prices still against sellers.

Potatoes—Old weak at last prices; new, $1@1 50.

Grain bags—Quiet, but firm at last quoted rates.

Hides—Dry, steady at full prices.

Salmon—There is small demand for Columbia river, but buyers' views are still below sellers'. No noteworthy transactions reported. Columbia river brands nominal at $1 17½@1 25 on river.

Wool—Quotations unchanged. Market quiet with no disposition on part of holders to make concessions on best grades.

Hops—Firm, but quiet at last quotations.

Eggs—Steady and unchanged.

RAILROAD MATTERS.

The Boston Advertiser of the 4th has the following item from New York:

The negotiations for the cancelation of the lease of the Oregon and California railroad to the Oregon and Transcontinental Company has been abandoned. It is stated they have failed because the Boston management of the Oregon and Transcontinental Company virtually declined to make a definite offer as to what that company would give to be released from its obligation. It is also stated that the offer was not made on account of the inability of the Oregon and Transcontinental company to turn over the securities or funds that would be required from it in settlement. The situation is further complicated by the fact that the Oregon and California second mortgage bonds were issued since the enactment of the Oregon law, under which the issue of new bonds by the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company was recently declared illegal. Hence the efforts to induce the holders of the $8,000,000 collateral trust loan to surrender their options to call the securities pledged have been discontinued.

Mr. J. B. Montgomery, a well known Oregonian, now in New York, summarizes the prospects of Northern Pacific in saying: "Do you notice the large traffic over the Northern Pacific? When I came here early in February the earnings were only $900,000 for the preceding month. I stated a prin[t] that the earnings in April would be $1,500,000. The first eighteen days in April show my estimate to have been correct. In May the earnings will be $1,600,000 and in October, which will be one of the best months, $2,000,000. The road will earn between $15,000,000 and $18,000,000 this year, and close on $20,000,000 next year. It will take 50,000 emigrants to Washington and Oregon, besides what go to Dakota and Montana. Mr. Sam Hauser, the Helena banker, told me that from his section parties interested with him will give 20,000 tons of freight to the Northern Pacific in 1885, from mines which were wholly undeveloped before the road was built."

PRESS PITH.

General Grant is still on crutches, but his race to the white house, which he will make shortly, will be the fastest on record.—Fort Smith New Era.

A Cincinnati physician, being interviewed, says that nearly all physicians are poor men. Perhaps so. Some of them are awfully poor doctors.—Burlington Hawkeye.

At a public meeting in Idaho a motion was made that a vote of thanks be passed to the memory of a citizen who had just died. It was carried with much feeling.—Bismarck Tribune.

A thousand women were present at a recent Kentucky hanging. There being very few churches in Kentucky, it was about the only opportunity they had to show their new spring bonnets.—Burlington Free Press.

There is a postmaster in Texas who has been in three wars and who has lived under five governments, says a news item. If he has been married five times we can't imagine why he has been in only three wars.—Fort Wayne Hoosier.

"Now, Johnny, if six men can do a piece of work in one day, how long will it take one man to do it?" asked an Austin school teacher of a sharp little boy. "The school teacher is a fool if he thinks I can answer that question," whispered Johnny in a low voice to the next boy. "Speak out, Johnny, I dare say you are right," replied the pedagogue.—Texas Siftings.

"Why are you home so early?" asked a wife of her husband. "Is the singing school out already?" "No, not more than half out," he replied. "Why didn't you stay to the close? Weren't you interested?" "I was until a 16-year old boy attempted to sing 'Larboard Watch, Ahoy!' Then I thought I would go home, go to bed and try to forget all about it."—Philadelphia Call.

The Insolent Rich.

Lady Manners, who belongs to the noble family of which the Duke of Richmond and Gordon is its present head, is authority for some statements about the English aristocracy that may be applied in some measure to the wealthy of our own country. In the National Magazine she says she finds the rich growing more extravagant, the men more effeminate, the women more outrageous in their habits every day. She is particularly hard on the members of her own sex, who, she says, lie in bed till after midday, drink wine before 11 A. M., eat twice as much as is good for them, smoke cigarettes and often cigars, and sit up puffing tobacco and sipping strong waters until the small hours of the morning. She further says many ladies spend $3000 a year in dress. Flowers for a ball often cost as much as $10,000, and while the poor are starving all over London the rich appear to be mainly intent on devising new schemes of lavish expenditure.

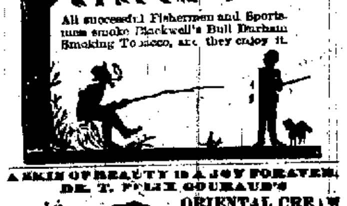
Pipe smoking is the real test of a tobacco. It is the regal way of smoking. You get more directly at the flavor and fragrance. You take the smoke cooler, and the tonic cleanlier and safer. Pipe smoking is smoking reduced to a fine art.

The more the question of adulterated tobacco forces itself on the attention of smokers, the more desirable it becomes to know precisely what you are smoking. In Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco you have a guarantee, always, that it is Nature's own unadulterated product. Its fragrance, flavor, and unsurpassed quality, are derived from the soil and air.

Try it, and you will be satisfied. None genuine without trade-mark of the Bull.



All successful Fishermen and Sportsmen smoke Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco, and they enjoy it.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
EPPS'S COCOA.
BREAKFAST.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette.
Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold in tins only (½ lb and lb) by Grocers, labeled thus:

DR. CHEEVER'S ELECTRIC BELT FOR MEN ONLY

This BELT or Regenerator is made expressly for the cure of derangements of the generative organs. There is no mistake about this instrument, the continuous stream of ELECTRICITY permeating through the parts must restore them to healthy action. Do not confound this with Electric Belts advertised to cure all ills from head to toe. It is for the one specific purpose.
For circulars giving full information, address Cheever Electric Belt Co., 103 Washington street, Chicago, Ill.

WEAK AND UNDEVELOPED PARTS OF THE HUMAN BODY ENLARGED, DEVELOPED AND STRENGTHENED," etc., is an interesting advertisement long run in our paper. In reply to inquiries we will say that there is no evidence of humbug about this. On the contrary, the advertisers are very highly indorsed. Interested persons may get sealed circulars giving all particulars by addressing ERIE MEDICAL CO., P. O. Box 513, Buffalo, N. Y.—Toledo Evening Bee.

POISON
In the blood is apt to show itself in the Spring, and nature should by all means be assisted in throwing it off. Swift's Specific does this effectively. It is a purely vegetable, non-poisonous remedy, which helps nature to force all the poison or taint out through the pores of the skin.

Mr. Robert A. Easley, of Dickson, Tenn., writes, under date March 10, 1884: "I had chills and fever, followed by rheumatism, for three years, so that I was not able to attend to my business; had tried almost every kind of medicine and found no relief. A friend recommended Swift's Specific. I tried one bottle and my health began to improve. I continued until I had taken six bottles, and it has set me on my feet, as sound and well as ever. I recommend it to all similarly afflicted."

Letters from twenty three (23) of the leading retail druggists of Atlanta say, under date March 24, 1884: "We sell more of Swift's Specific than any other one remedy, and three to ten times as much as any other blood medicine. We sell it to all classes, and many of the best families use it as a general health tonic."

I am sure that Swift's Specific saved my life. I was terribly poisoned with malaria, and I was given up to die. Swift's Specific relieved me promptly and entirely. I think it is the greatest remedy of the age.
C. G. SPENCER, Sup't. Gas Works, Rome, Ga.

I have known and used Swift's Specific for more than twenty years, and have seen more wonderful results from its use than from any remedy in or out of the Pharmacopœa. It is a certain and safe antidote to all sorts of Blood Poison.

WOLFE'S
Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps.
As a general beverage, necessary corrective of water rendered impure by vegetable decomposition or other causes, as limestone, sulphate of copper, etc., the AROMATIC SCHNAPPS is superior to every other alcoholic preparation. A public trial of over thirty years' duration, in every section of our country, of UDOLPHO WOLFE'S SCHNAPPS, its unsolicited indorsement by the medical faculty, and a sale unequaled by any other alcoholic distillation, have insured for it the reputation for salubrity claimed for it. For sale by all druggists and grocers.
